MRS. TAYLOR'S STORY

WOMAN FRIEND OF COLEMAN ON WITNESS STAND

Breaks Down and Sobs as She Gives Evidence in Keliher Trial—Dramatic Scene in U. S. Court.

Mrs. Marguerite L. Taylor, young and very attractive, called to the witness stand in the trial of William J. (Big Bill) Keliher to-day for his alleged connection with the wrecking of the National City Bank of Cambridge, testified that George W. Coleman and she were engaged to be married, that he gave her $10 a week regularly for two years, that he rented a cottage for her at Nantasket from July until October last year, that he gave her gifts of money, watches, diamonds, furs and other resents, and that she had seen Coleman and Keliher together frequently within the past year.

MRS. TAYLOR WEEPS AS SHE TESTIFIES.

Very much wrought up Mrs. Taylor wept and was on the verge of a breakdown all the time she was on the stand. Her voice trembled and her face was pale. She clasped and unclasped her hands nervously. Her associations with Coleman began to grow less after the last municipal election, Mrs. Taylor said, and finally ended entirely.

On the night Fitzgerald's election was announced Mrs. Taylor said she went with Coleman to the Hayward. They were dining when Keliher came in. Keliher sent champagne to their table.

Given Money Lavishly.

Mrs. Taylor testified that she and Coleman talked about their association after a dinner later at the Thorndike at her home, and in consequence of that they soon ceased to meet, although she had seen him about every day up to that time from the first of the previous June. She said that she did not know Miss Hightower then, and she was not allowed to reply as to whether another woman in the case had caused her to break with Coleman.

Coleman spent a great deal of money on her, Mrs. Taylor said, in dinners, auto riding and at theatres, and once he took her to New York. She said that she did not know Coleman had a flat on Columbus avenue and she did not know at that time he received only $12 a week. She said the dinners she and Coleman had together cost almost $7 or $8 each. They did not always have wine with their dinners, she said.

Witness Very Nervous.

After Mrs. Taylor had been questioned for about five minutes, during which she seemed very much worried, a short recess was taken. Mrs. Taylor went to her seat in the room and broke down and cried bitterly for some minutes. Lawyer William A. Morse, attorney for Coleman and Lockhart, soothed the young woman and she was soon smiling again.

The witness could not shake off her nervousness, however, when she was called to the stand again. She bit her lips until they burned red. She clasped and unclasped her hands. Her rings gleamed, brightly in the shadowy court room.

Questioned by Mr. French, Mrs. Taylor said that the late Keliher met a year ago, being introduced to him by Coleman. She saw Keliher sometimes once, sometimes twice and sometimes three times a week, in company with Coleman. Most of these times Keliher and Coleman were at the Back Bay station on their way to New York on the 5 o'clock train.

There was a frightful fuss in the court room, when it was learned that Mrs. Taylor had been called to the stand. Not only was every available foot of space taken but the corridors were crowded.

Lockhart Closely Questioned.

Mrs. Taylor followed Wilson W. Lockhart as a witness. Lockhart was pretty severely pressed by Lawyer Daniel H. Coakley, who cross-examined him. In his cross-examination the names of a number of young women were mentioned, including those of Miss Hightower, Miss Arnold, Miss Lucille Harris and Miss Dulie Collins.

Lawyer Coakley caught Lockhart up pretty sharply immediately after he took the stand. Coakley asked if he had not talked since yesterday about his testimony with friends and Lockhart denied it. Then he admitted that he had talked with Mr. Garland, assistant district attorney. He said he could not remember Garland saying to him: "What to tell is the matter with you and that you are disappointed? I'll do better to-morrow."

Lockhart was asked about meeting Coleman, Miss Hightower and Miss Arnold at the Hotel Bellevue after he knew he had been indicted. Coakley saying: "I know you four were there more than once."

Coakley wanted to know if Coleman had not told the two young women at the Bellevue that Van Buskirk was as guilty as he, but Mr. French objected and was sustained, as he was when the cross-examiner asked Lockhart if he had not asked Coleman to see Daniel H. Coakley, a prominent Cambridge man about the affairs of the bank. Lockhart said that he had not—if he were going to lip anybody off he would not say that. He said that he could have warned his aunt, who had money in the bank.

Called "Lock" by Keliher.

Lockhart insisted that Coleman, before he left for the West, told him that he was going to New York on business. Keliher called the witness "Lock," he said. The witness said that he had told Mr. French about having seen Coleman give Keliher money in New York, but he was hazy as to when he told him.

Lockhart admitted to-day that he knew Lawyer Peters' name in connection with the bank had been not proper. Yesterday, when Lockhart was told if he had been promised anything for his testimony or expected to benefit from it he denied it.

The air is said about the courtroom seemed pretty hot when charged with electricity. Tacts were shaky flashes from the eyes of "Big Bill" Keliher when Coleman, handcuffed, ran after him just as the convicted prisoner ran into the recessed cell.

Again there was another flash from the eyes of Mrs. Marguerite Taylor when she caught sight of Miss Mamie Hightower in the courtroom. Mrs. Taylor, a pleasant, petite figure, tripped into the courtroom before court convened, accompanied by a very pretty girl. Mrs. Taylor went to Assistant District Attorney Garland and said: "I have brought a girl friend with me to keep me company."

"That is all right," replied Mr. Garland.

Then the two women sought seats in a different part of the room than that occupied by Miss Mamie Hightower.

Coleman walked shackled to Deputy Mar-

CLARA MORRIS IS NO BETTER

TONKERS, N. Y., May 25.—The condition of Mrs. F. C. Harriot (Clara Morris), the aged actress, who has been ill for many weeks, was unchanged to-day. Her husband said:

"Mrs. Harriot is no better. Her condition has remained unchanged for the past ten days. Of late she has been suffering a great deal. She is fast losing her eyesight, and we have given up all hope of ever having her sight restored."

Several physicians are in constant attendance. Mrs. Harriot has taken her illness with great fortitude and insists that the Bible be read to her every day. This is done by her husband.

SLAYING CHRISTIAN CHINESE

HANKOW, China, May 25.—The Chinese rebels are in complete control of a territory embracing several hundreds of square miles in the northern part of Hunan Province, and a war of extermination is being waged on all native Christians. The mobs have destroyed all telegraph wires as part of the preparations for the anti-foreign uprising called for May 29. The disorders are called for May 29.

The disorders are spreading northward rapidly, and in the path of the rebels a score of villages lie sacked or smoking. The situation at Yi Yang, where the officials sworn out to put the mobs to work, serious and the torch is being applied right and left. A third of the town has been destroyed.

Reports say that, as in the attack on foreigners at Chang-Sha, the places to be destroyed are selected carefully by the mob leaders, who dedicate what shall be left unmolested. The leaders appear to have as perfect command over their forces as if they were military officers. One report is current that renegade Japanese officers are leading the revolt.

Advices from Changsha show that the first reports minimized the damage, the portion of the city burned Saturday being larger than was at first believed here. At Nahkih signs of fires are growing more daily and a general uprising, more serious than that at Chang Sha, is feared. James H. McNally, the American Consul, and Vice-Consul John K. Davis have taken steps to protect Americans and their property. The crowds already gathering for the exhibition of the heads of those executed are being watched by the government. It is reported that the rebels will bring in a large force in place of sightseers.

EVA BOOTH, IN RAGS, ON ARMY PLATFORM

Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation Army will make a whirlwind campaign in Boston, beginning to-morrow with the opening of the New England congress of the army. An unusual demonstration is expected when Miss Booth, in rags, addresses the united members of the congress on Sunday night at the Majestic Theatre. On Sunday morning Miss Booth appears at the Park Street Baptist Church. At many of the other meetings officers of the army will be held Sunday morning and evening. Outdoor meetings and demonstrations throughout Greater Boston will be conducted from Thursday to Sunday.

BOY BITTEN, FEAR LIFE IS IN DANGER

WAKEFIELD, May 25.—Bitten in half a dozen places by a dog, Robert M. Dean, Jr., is confined to his bed to-day, and may be sent to New York for the Pasteur treatment. An expert from the State cattle bureau is expected here to-night to examine the dog to decide whether there is any danger of hydrophobia. The dog is owned by Gustav A. Peterson. Young Dean was bitten three times on the left leg.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, May 25.—Jim McGuire, the veteran leader of the Naps, was some worried when he directed his brigade to take the field against the Red Sox in the second series, as another defeat would about put him out of business because of the strain of straight defeats.

With the wizard Joss out of the way, McGuire had to depend on some of his young material, and the Red Sox have taken so kindly to the recruit stock of swingers to use past that the Naps' leader knew he was taking big chances.

As Jim Johnson was attending the game both teams were apt to put a little more edge on their playing, as the big president was looking at the game with a critical eye and carried away with him a picture of the game to be seen in Washington.

Manager Donovan had a choice between a southpaw in Walter Karger and Arnold Jones, who has been on the shelf for some time. The weather conditions had much to do with his selection.

12,000 STRIKERS ATTACK TROOPS

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 25.—Extra troopers were to-day rushed to Colliery No. 14, near Pittston, where rioting again broke out. Attempting to prevent non-union men from going to work, the strikers, who now number 12,000, stoned and fired on the non-unionists that tried to clear the road.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, May 25.—It was the last chance the Doves had to get revenge on the Reds. With only one game in their favor in the four played the eastern team wanted the final contest the worst way and the local fans knew that they would get it unless the home bunch showed exceptional diamond ability.

The visitors have been by a hair what games have gone against them and the clean-cut win of yesterday proved that at their proper gait they must be considered by any team in the league, no matter what position it held in the race.

Manager Lake had one trump card up his sleeve to use in Buster Brown, who he picked to pitch, even a better game than Cliff Curtis and he only needed the proper kind of support to bring home the bacon. Manager Griffith had some good looking youngsters to call on and it was a toss up which one he would pull out of the stable.

MRS. SISEE, DIVORCEE, WEDS RICH BACHELOR

LYNN, May 25.—Mrs. Sallie Maizie Blakie Sisee, sister-in-law of former Mayor Charles Neal Barney, who was divorced from her former husband, was married to Paul M. Keene, a wealthy bachelor, society and clubman, who is engaged in the rubber business in Boston. At the ceremony in the First Universalist Church there were present ex-Mayor Barney and wife and their five-year-old daughter, the seven-year-old daughter of the bride, William H. Keen, father of the groom, a Boston banker; Harrison G. Burrill, cashier in a local bank, and two Boston business men.

American Gunners Beat Back Attack of Nicaraguan Army and Save Estrada From Total Defeat. Warship Shells City.

BLUEFIELDS, May 25.—During the battle on the outskirts of Bluefields, in which American gunners prevented the routing and demoralizing of the Eastern forces, rapid fire machine guns from the steamer Venus threw a hail of shot about the custom house. Had the American machine gun men been well supported the tide of battle might have been turned and Estrada to-day be celebrating a victory. The government division under General Lara, upon which the entire rear attack on the Bluefields' defences devolved, was hurled back with broken ranks after a charge on the American machine gun battery and driven in confusion into a swamp.

Natives Hold Back.

Had the Estradans backed up the Americans by a vigorous charge of a couple of hundred men the entire division of General Lara might have been taken. But the efforts of the American officers and men to get native Estradans to follow them in a charge into the swamp were futile. General Lara in the meantime rallied his men, and moving them back into their former position under a counter artillery fire soon resumed the attack.

The nerve and skill of the American gunners broke the charging line of the government troops a dozen times after the native Estrada soldiers had fled in terror. The Yankee held the enemy until the commanders could rally their men. Estrada made his last stand to-day. He feared a reassuring statement declaring that victory was within sight, but it was evident that if the Madrix forces continued to fight to-day with the bulldog courage and persistency they showed yesterday, the Estrada cause was doomed. All night long a close range artillery duel was fought and the losses to both sides were heavy.

To Demand Entrance.

Madrix's plan in the event of Estrada's surrender is to advance its army to the city limits of Bluefields and then demand entrance from Commander Gilbert of the Dubbert gunboat.

Government forces attacked the customs house to-day and administered a sharp rebuke to the forces of Estrada. The provisional army or the section of it that was guarding the customs house was severely driven back on the city defences.

The American marines guarding the United States consulate are preparing for battle if the government forces enter the city. Machine guns are trained upon the streets by which the soldiers of Madrix might reach the United States consulate.

The attack of the forces from home on Bluefields bluff was begun by General Lara soon after the government forces combined by 500 men landed at Pearl Lagoon last night by the Dubbert boat, The Venus. The bluff was believed to be impregnable by the Estradans, who had concentrated their forces there and otherwise strengthened their position.

Upon the fall possession of the bluff hangs the possession of the provisional capital.

MORSE, IN COLLISION, IS SUNK

ROCKLAND, Me., May 25.—The steamer James T. Morse sank within ten minutes to-day at Tilson's wharf here during a fog, after being run into by the turbine steamship Belfast. While the latter was slowing mooting towards the wharf she refused to obey the helm and her sharp bow hit the Morse just forward of the pilot house, cutting through hurricane deck, guards and rail. The Belfast was not seriously damaged and proceeded towards shore almost on time.

Water poured into the Morse so fast that nothing could be done to keep her afloat. The disaster occurred at 3:17 a. m., when most of the Morse's crew were in their berths and asleep. Five firemen and seventeen deckhands had an escape called little short of miraculous.

The Belfast drove her bow into the small space which separated their quarters. Abner Critch of Newfoundland was pinned in his bunk by the timbers and rescued by Lee Vance, a shipmate, with great difficulty. Three were six passengers aboard and they rushed on deck in a panic. They had time to save their clothing and valuables, however, before the damaged steamer went down. Much of the cargo of the Morse was saved by quick work. A scow was brought alongside and transshipment went on until the vessel sank.

The steamer Boothby was chartered to take the place of the Morse and took the passengers on their destinations, as well as some who arrived from Boston on the Belfast. Pirates on both sides of the Belfast's bow were busy in the collision, which was due to her being caught in a strong current when her power was nearly shut off to enable her to make a landing.

The Morse may be taken to East Boston for repairs. The damage to her is estimated at $10,000. She was built by William Mackie of East Boston at a cost of $140,000 and made her first trip on the Mt. Desert route June 20, 1904. Her gross tonnage is 299 net tonnage 194, length 214 feet over all, length on water line 199 feet, breadth 31 feet and depth 12 feet 1 inch. Mr. Morse was a member of the Boston Yacht Club and will send two divers here immediately.

DURGIN DENIES MILK CHARGES BY GALLIVAN

Dr. Samuel H. Durgin, chairman of the board of health, to-day abruptly dismissed the charges made by Dr. Frank A. Gallivan that there was collusion between Durgin and Chief Inspector James O. Jordan to protect the big milk dealers.

"I know of no collusion, neither does Mr. Gallivan. That is the only reply that I deem necessary," said the chairman when asked to comment upon the charges.

His reply indicated that he challenged Dr. Gallivan to produce proof of his statements made at the milk hearing at the State House yesterday.

Dr. Gallivan was for a number of years "head" for the board of health and resigned about two years ago because of friction with his superior. Since that time he has frequently taken issue with the health board.

At yesterday's hearing given to the pro-tuberculosis against the sealed jar regulation which goes into effect on June 15, Dr. Gallivan charged that if the inspectors of the board rigidly enforced the regulation which brands as impure milk that contains over 500,000 bacteria in a cubic centimetre, there would be no necessity for the new regulation.

Hearings on the milk problem arising out of the strike of the producers against the Boston milk contractors were closed by the legislative committee at the State House to-day. The committee will stay in executive session until Friday, when it will make its report to the Legislature.

The hearings before the committee began on May 5 and have been held on every day since then when the Legislature was in session. Contractors, producers, consumers and disinterested experts have testified in the matter.

MORGAN WINS STEEL LISTING

By VANCE THOMPSON.

Special Cable to Boston American.

PARIS, May 25.—I am informed on good authority that J. Pierpont Morgan will probably succeed in his present endeavor to have the American Steel stocks listed on the Paris Bourse.

My informant says that the previous attempt failed because of the flat refusal of M. Caillaux, who was then the finance minister, to permit listing what he considered a speculative stock.

The present minister of finance is said to be willing to reverse his decision. This is construed as a diplomatic form of assent to the proposition of the American financier and his associate.

YOUNG LADIES WHO LEAD PLAY IN DORCHESTER

All Dorchester is greatly interested in the annual May party and play this evening at Whitte Hall, Dorchester Women's Club, Centre street, by the members of the Phi Sigma Society, which is composed of twenty-five young men and women prominent in Dorchester and Jamaica Plain society.

The play is one that deals entirely with college life and is the get-up of the members of the society. The leading role will be taken by Charles Patterson, an old Mechanic Arts High School athlete. Miss Sully Cavanagh, will be seen in the leading feminine parts.

Others interested in the cast are Edward Murray, Peter H. Dillon, Joseph Carew, Thomas McCarthy, George Carlson, Freddie Cameron, Rutland Powers, William Fisher, Miss Anna Carew, Miss May Tuttle Smith, Miss Lulu Meehan, Miss Harriet Smith, Miss Margaret Dolan, Miss Gertrude Frisbee and Miss Katherin Frisbee.

PREDICT TROLLEYS WILL RAISE RATES

The prediction that in the near future both the steam railroads and the electric railways in Massachusetts will be obliged to raise their rates is contained in a report on the subject of taxation made by the High Cost of Living Commission.

"Already our Massachusetts roads are beginning to raise rates and they must do more of it if prices keep on rising," says the Commission. The predicament of the railroads comes from the difficulty in raising rates and fares without a storm of public protest.

The street railroads are in a still worse dilemma. Their income is wholly from passenger fares and a change is instantly known to all persons. Custom has firmly fixed five cents in Massachusetts as the proper amount to pay for riding on a street car. With the purchasing power of the nickel dropping every year it is hard to see how the street railroads can long stand it.

DEFENCE SPRINGS NEW SURPRISE IN THE TRIAL OF MRS. RICHMOND

Intimation by attorneys for the defence in the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, charged with the murder of Stewart MacTavish at the Hotel Florence in East Cambridge, that another person might be accused, caused a surprise today when the hearing was resumed before Judges Crosby and Dana in the Middlesex Superior Court.

The first climax in the case to-day came when Attorney Gleaq, of counsel for Mrs. Richmond, interrupted the examination of Policeman Joseph H. Shannon of Cambridge by Assistant District Attorney Weir by asking:

"Did you remember asking someone if Clifford did it?"

This was objected to by Mr. Weir.

Q.—You put 'Clifford under arrest, didn't you?' A.—Yes, sir.

This ended the incident and the Assistant District Attorney resumed his examination of the policeman. Weir handed a small brooche, which was covered with bloodstains, to the witness.

Q.—Is this the one you found in the bedroom? A.—Yes, sir.

Mrs. Richmond, the accused, turned her head away when the one was held up before the witness and the jurors.

The revolver with which, according to the government, Stewart MacTavish was shot and killed, was identified by Patrolman Shannon.

Shannon told of the condition of the body when he found it.

Mrs. Richmond came into court to-day in calm as ever, apparently none the worse for her long stay in jail and the ordeal of the trial. Her three daughters, Adeline, Agnes and Isabella, were in court and talked with their mother.

Under examination by Assistant District Attorney Weir, Shannon told the following story: "I went into the bedroom where the body was found, and from there to the hallway before. In the top right hand drawer of a desk I found a revolver, which pointed with a black handle."

He told of finding a suit case, since identified as MacTavish's, in a closet in the room. He also described finding Mrs. Richmond lying on the kitchen floor in a stupor.

PANIC AVERTED IN SHOP BLAZE

A slight blaze which might have resulted seriously to a dozen or more girl employes, lost for the quick work of C. J. Miller, a shipper, caused a scare in the four-story brick building at No. 97 Beverly street, West End, to-day. The blaze started on the fourth floor, occupied by the Triumph Couch & Bed Company, and was caused by a spark from a picking machine.

Mr. Miller calmed the girls as they passed excitedly to the door to escape by the stairways. His appeal for calmness was heeded. While he talked the blaze extinguished.

'HOODOO' CREW IS DISCHARGED

Believing his cosmopolitan crew to be a Jonah, Captain Mirsess of the Italian bark Petrino, which left here to-day, discharged twelve of the seventeen sailors. Among the twelve men who received their discharge papers were natives of France, Spain, Chili, Sweden, both West Indies, British West Indies and South Africa.

The only two retained sailed and every color of the human race, from the coal black Oliver Reilly, a native of the Barbadoes, to Otto Lanseu, a fox-headed son of Sweden, was represented.

SUES FOR "RAT" AND "BUNCH OF CURLS"

ST. LOUIS, May 25.—A "bunch of curls, $3.50," and a "rat, 65 cents," are among a list of articles outlined to have been lost in a railroad accident by Mrs. Willie J. Gardner, according to an amended petition filed by her in Circuit Court. In asking for the Frisco railroad for $5,307.90 damages for injuries, the loss of property and expenses, Gardner says Mrs. Gardner lost the accident while on her way from Oklahoma City to St. Louis, November 2, last.

FISHERMEN FIND STOLEN FURS

MALONE, N. Y., May 25.—Fishermen, following a stream near Long Lake West in the Adirondacks came upon several packages containing expensive furs secreted in brush piles not far from the bank. The furs were traced to a point north of Montreal, where they had been stolen from a railway train en route. They were valued at $1,500 and the railway company has already paid the claim upon them.

GREEK ROBE WEARERS REFUSED MEAL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 25.—Objecting to the breezy Greek raiment in which Norman Duncan and his wife appeared on the boardwalk, managers of a restaurant refused to serve the two exponents of Greek simplicity. Dr. S. L. Krein and Mrs. Krein, who had brought the Duncans from Swarthmore in their car, took the refusal as including themselves.

MAYOR'S CIVIL SERVICE BILL IS TURNED DOWN

Mayor Fitzgerald's bill to require the Civil Service Commission to give to the public its reasons for turning down the Mayor's appointees and to give hearings on cases of appointees whom it refuses to approve, was refused admittance by the House of Representatives to-day by a rollcall vote of 65 to 111. A four-fifths vote was necessary for admittance.

Representative Timothy F. Callahan's bill to require the Commission to give its reasons privately to rejected appointees was refused admittance on a rising vote, 55 to 62. The Mayor's bill to transfer the appeal power from the Civil Commission to the City Council and Representative Callahan's bill to require the Commission to file its reasons for rejections with the City Clerk were each refused admittance on a voice vote.

Demand Home Rule.

The debate on the bills, although lasting less than a half-hour, was one of the liveliest of the session. Representatives Callahan, Ducey of Charlestown, William H. O'Brien of Boston and Carmody of Worcester led the fight for admitting the bills. Representatives Cushing and Rossmaniere of Boston led the opposition.

Home rule and the right of Boston's voters to know why the acts of the Mayor were not approved by a State commission were the keynotes of the arguments for admittance of the bills. "Give the new charter a chance" was the chief argument of the opponents.

Nine Democrats, either from Boston or from districts outside, voted against admitting the bills. Three Boston Republicans, Bates of East Boston, Mistrau of Dorchester and Leonard of West Roxbury voted to admit the bills. Thirteen Republicans from outside Boston voted to admit the bills. They were Brown of Medford, Carleton of Chelsea, Cavanagh of Everett, Cogswell of Lynn, Doyle of New Bedford, Goodell of Oak Bluffs, Halliday of North Andover, Keenan of Lynn, Lamson of Melrose, Perry of New Bedford, Moore of Fall River, Perry of Marlon, Quinn of Swampscott.

Failed to Vote.

The Boston men who did not vote were as follows:

Democrats—Coogan of South Boston, Daly of Roxbury, Goode of Roxbury, Hayes of Charlestown, Kelly of Ward 16, Mahoney of Ward 17, McLaughlin of Roxbury, Murray of Charlestown, Noonan of South Boston, Powers of South Boston, Shaw of Charlestown—11.

Republicans—Arnold of Ward 12, John Carr of Roxbury, Hays of Brighton, Montague of Ward 10—4.

URGES MORE MILK AND LESS LIQUOR

The matter of a cent or two more for milk does not amount to much, even with the poor. If the poor would buy more milk and less liquor, they would be better off.

Forty years ago, when I first began practice, punch and liquors were tool four times as much as they are now by the members of the medical profession. Milk is now used instead, and it is of the greatest importance to have it pure.—From the address of Dr. George W. Gray, former president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, at the legislative milk hearing.

Feet So Sore Couldn't Walk Down Stairs--

TIZ Cured Her Quick.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett of Jeffersonville. TIZ DID IT. Mrs. Crockett says: "After the second treatment she walked downstairs one foot at a time. She has not been able to walk downstairs before in past five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. This is remarkable. Send five more boxes."

No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other nostrums merely cake up the pores. TIZ draws them out and keeps them out. That's why TIZ helps the feet right to stay well. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. TIZ is the only foot remedy that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25c per box, or you can get a free trial from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Eastern Drug Co., Distributors.

STATE POLICE HUNT FIREBUG IN CHELSEA

The State police to-day started a hunt for the firebug responsible for the early morning blaze which threatened to wipe out a thickly populated tenement district in Chelsea and Everett. The local police have furnished the State inspectors a description of the man, who is said to be the same who kindled two fires in Everett yesterday.

To-day's fire imperilled the lives of scores in Chelsea near the Everett line, and rendered necessary two alarms of fire in Chelsea, calling out the entire department, and one alarm in Everett, calling out the fire apparatus from that place. One double three-decker was burned to the ground, two cottages were greatly damaged and the sparks ignited a number of buildings, including the grease works of A. Lagg & Co. at No. 260 Second street, Chelsea.

Fred Merchant of Salem owned the three-story six-tenement building which was burned to the ground. The house had not been occupied since Christmas when the tenants left on account of the flood resulting from the breaking of a dyke.

Mrs. I. A. Meades, who occupied a one and a half story cottage on Locust avenue, Everett, was carried from the building unconscious from smoke by Police Lieutenant Frank W. Tucker and Patrolman Crocker of Everett. She was revived in a neighboring house.

Patrolman James E. Mahoney of the Chelsea police and Patrolman Crocker rescued two women from the smoke and flames in the one and a half-story cottage of Louis Gilman, on Auburn street, opposite the unoccupied six-tenement house which was totally destroyed. Gilman and two grown sons groped their way out of the smoke with difficulty after being aroused by the policemen, who had to carry Mrs. Gilman and a daughter into the street.

While the excitement lasted firemen and police crossed hundreds of persons in the McNulty and some the nearby streets were crowded with scantily clad persons, some laden with household goods and valuables, fearing a repetition of the conflagration of two years ago.

BLAME NEW ORDER FOR FATAL CRASH

ST. JOHN, N. B., May 25.—One man was killed, several given a shaking up and much railroad property destroyed when the Intercolonial Railway maritime express bound here from Moncton, crashed into a pulpwood train at Nauwigewauk. The dead man was John Casey of Moncton, brakeman on the maritime express.

Railway men say the collision followed an order recently issued giving east-bound trains the right of way over west-bound, under which it is claimed by the subordinate view that the main track was theirs and that the express should have taken a siding.

GIRL SHOOTS SELF IN FEAR

LYMAN, Me., May 25.—Fearing that a detective was coming to her home, Edith Connor, a girl fifteen years of age, who lives with her aunt, Mrs. Arthur Green, attempted suicide by shooting, and is now in the Trull hospital at Biddeford.

The girl was left in the Green home by her aunt, and it is said that before Mrs. Green left the house she told her niece that a detective might come to the house during the afternoon. Evidently the girl became frightened during the afternoon, she secured a revolver and, pressing the muzzle against her side, she pulled the trigger. At the hospital it was found that the bullet had just missed her heart by a hair breadth. She has a chance of recovery.

The attempt of Miss Connor to end her life is the outcome of a case in the Municipal Court in Saco April 1, when the girl's aunt, Mrs. Green, appeared before Judge Deering on the charge of cruelty to the young girl on complaint of Mrs. Lydia A. Shee of Saco, the agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. After a long hearing Mrs. Green was discharged and it is alleged that the girl has been in fear of a detective coming to the house since that time.

'GAY LOTHARIO' IS PUMMELED

A young man giving the name of Fred Viano, who says his home address is Bedford street, Lexington, was arraigned in the Jersey City police court charged with being a disorderly person.

Viano enjoyed a street flirtation with Sadie Buxbaum, fifteen. Tuesday she received a letter from him in which he proposed that they go to Boston.

Sadie's mother wrote a letter to Viano and made her daughter sign it. The letter was an invitation to Viano to be on the corner near the Buxbaum home at 8 o'clock last night.

When Viano arrived he was pounced upon by Mrs. Buxbaum, her seventeen-year-old son Fred and four of his boon companions. Viano was severely handled and it was not until the welcoming party had pummeled him that he was turned over to the police.

LEGION OF HONOR SUITS DECIDED

Nine opinions, the record number in a single matter, have been handed down by the Supreme Court and dispose of seventeen suits brought against the Supreme Council, American Legion of Honor, in the name of the Attorney-General.

The litigation arose when the defendant association, a Massachusetts fraternal beneficial corporation, became insolvent in 1904. The principal point at issue was the validity of an amendment to the by-laws reducing the amount of death benefits from $5,000 to $2,000. The full court holds that as fourteen of the plaintiffs accepted the lesser amount, and gave releases, they lost all right to have the difference made up by the receiver out of the emergency fund. In three cases the court find that the plaintiffs preserved their rights and are entitled to the full amount.

MARLBORO PLANS BIG CELEBRATION

MARLBORO, May 25.—The 250th anniversary of the founding of this city will be celebrated June 11 to 14. On Monday, the 11th, there will be a big street parade, in which it is expected fully 10,000 men will be in line, including the Sixth Regiment, M. V. M., Company F being composed of Marlboro men. The orator of the occasion will be Charles S. Hamlin, while Governor Draper will be the guest of honor. The city will be decorated and there will be sports, fireworks and festivities for the children.

SAYS PROHIBITION DOES NOT PROHIBIT

CINCINNATI, O., May 25.—Confident that the prohibition sentiment existing among delegates to the fifteenth annual convention of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association are in session here, United action against prohibitory and local option laws and the enactment of statutes providing for moderate licenses for and the strict regulation of liquor selling and advocated at the opening.

Said President Westheimer: "Prohibition is on trial to-day at the bar of public opinion. We are proving our case; we have shown the increase of lawlessness in 'dry' territory."

ACTORS' FUND FAIR CLEARS $110,000

NEW YORK, May 25.—Net profits of $110,000 were realized for the Actors' fund, devoted to the care of aged and needy stage followers, by the recent fair, held in this city, according to the statement of President Daniel Frohman. About half the money, he said, was contributed by actors themselves. Mr. Frohman was re-elected president of the fund.

MIDDIES TAKE HAND CAR JOY RIDE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 25.—For having commanded a handcar on the Maryland Electric Railway Company, and going on a joy ride during the morning, four midshipmen, all members of the fourth, or freshman class, are confined to their rooms at Bancroft Hall, under close arrest.

BROKER, VERY ILL, IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

TAUNTON, May 25.—New York, New Haven and southeastern Massachusetts society and business circles were startled to-day when it became known that Tristram R. Coffin, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, had been sued for divorce.

Papers were last night served on Mr. Coffin, who is convalescing at the home of his father-in-law in North Attleboro from a serious illness. The suit, it is said, came as a complete surprise to Mr. Coffin.

Mrs. Coffin charges her husband with cruelty and intoxication. Coffin is the son of a New York and Attleboro financier. In the papers which were filed here with the clerk of the Bristol county court Mrs. Coffin asks for alimony and the custody of her two children.

Judge Hall of Taunton is acting as Mrs. Coffin's attorney.

Mrs. Coffin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richards of North Attleboro, who have been traveling in Europe for some months. For six months Mrs. Coffin has been staying at the home of her parents. Mr. Coffin came there from New York a month ago. He was very sick and two nurses have been attending him.

Last night, when the papers were served, policemen was placed on guard outside the mansion, and to-day the house is still being watched over by a lynx-eyed. It is said that Mr. Coffin expects to leave for New York to-day.

Mrs. Coffin's brother, Ira Richards, Jr., is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, came to North Attleboro three days ago. It was through him, it is said, that Judge Hall was retained and the divorce suit filed.

Richards, a few years ago, was the best runner in his class at Harvard and he held the Crimson athletics.

The Richards family is one of the wealthiest of southeastern Massachusetts. Mr. Richards, Sr., is a manufacturing jeweler. The Coffins were married about two years ago. Their wedding was the most elaborate Attleboro ever saw, and things Richards' detectives were employed at the time to guard the wedding presents.

MEETS DEATH IN BATHTUB

NEW YORK, May 25.—The effort of a small boy to amuse a neighbor's baby led to the infant's death in a tub of hot water. The little victim was Alice Alliger, ten months old. While Mrs. Alliger was hanging out clothes in the yard, Robert Cornell, although only five years old, turned on the water in the bath tub and lifted the baby up to watch it run. The baby slipped from his arms and the boy, frightened, ran home. The infant was dead when found by the frantic mother.

MAKING 7,000-MILE TRIP IN WAGON

MUNCIE, Ind., May 25.—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Shallenbarger, a well-to-do couple of Butte, Mont., who are using a wagon in traveling, passed through here on their way to Philadelphia. At the conclusion of their visit in Philadelphia they will journey homeward the same way, having covered 7,000 miles.

When they departed from Butte two Scotch collies were with them, one of which, when 300 miles from home, refused to go any farther, and after vainly trying to induce the other dog to join it, according to the Shallenbargers, started back home.

FOR PEOPLE WHO ITCH AND SCRATCH

Get a 10c. box of Cadum, the new remedy, at any drug store, and apply a small quantity to any part of the skin which is affected and it will stop the itching at once. It is also good for pimples, rash, blotches, also where there is inflammation, chafing or itching. Inside of a day the trouble will be greatly relieved and often disappear completely. This test will prove better than words the remarkable virtues of this new compound. Cadum is likewise a safe and sure remedy for Eczema, Salt Rheum and other stubborn skin diseases of that nature. The itching stops at once when it is applied, and the healing process is immediately begun. Full-size boxes of Cadum, containing about four times as much as the 10c. package, are sold for 25c.

CHAMPLAIN HOTEL WIPED OUT BY FIRE

ALBANY, N. Y., May 25.—The Hotel Champlain was destroyed by fire early today. It had not been opened for the Summer and there were no guests in the house. The sixty employes escaped. The loss is $200,000.

The fire broke out shortly before 2 o'clock, and although the fire department at Plattsburg, three miles away, was summoned, they were unable to cope with the flames, which soon destroyed the hotel and annex. The cause of the fire has not yet been ascertained.

The hotel was owned by the Delaware & Hudson Company, and was one of the largest and finest hotels in Northern New York.

Within the hotel two Presidents had been entertained. President Taft spent several days there last year and President McKinley enjoyed two vacations at this famous hostelry. The hotel was built 20 years ago and was of wood, the original cost being $450,000. A few years ago an additional annex costing $200,000 more was put on.

At the next meeting of the railroad directors in New York city steps will be taken toward rebuilding the hotel, which has been regarded as one of the best paying institutions of its kind in the country.

MODERN PULPIT WORK HARD, SAYS DR. ELIOT

"The great majority of ministers simply cannot be expected to measure up to the standards which compel success in the work of a modern church. It is a long catalogue—the duties of a modern minister. It is impossible to expect any one man to meet all the requirements. The remedy is to be found in the frank abandonment of our old outworn theories of the ministerial office and the adoption of a conception which will admit of our churches using exceptional capacities for special tasks. The ministry now is unattractive to strong men, because the work is so superficial, because a man must do so many things that he can be none of them well."—The Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Association, speaking at the meeting in Channing Hall.

'ROYAL ROOTER' REGAN IN DEBTORS' COURT

Michael J. Regan, widely known among baseball fans as "the royal rooter," was summoned into the poor debtor's court today on a citation by James S. Cannon, administrator of the estate of the late Hannah N. Brown. The proceeding was on a civil process. At the May sitting of the Grand Jury Regan was indicted on the charge of stealing bonds valued at $13,000 from the Brown estate. He was held in $18,000 bonds, and being unable to furnish bail has remained in Charles street jail ever since.

MADRID HEARS OF PLOT TO TAKE LIVES OF KINGS

MADRID, May 25.—Secret warnings have been sent to the government officials at Lisbon that an attempt upon the life of King Manuel is likely to be made on his return from London. The Spanish police in tracing the details of the widespread anarchist plot for a conquest of Portugal have found that not only are King Alfonso and King Manuel of Portugal marked for death, but nearly all of their governments as well.

The extensive anarchist-clerical uprising on the Iberian peninsula without regard to nationality has been traced to the facts already learned. Only England's position as a perfect refuge prevented attempts on Alfonso and Manuel in London during the disorder over King Edward. It was upon advices sent from here, however, that the Paris police spoke the arrival of Manuel there yesterday took extraordinary precautions to guard the Portuguese monarch.

BARBERS' UNION TO MAKE NEW DEMANDS

The Barbers' Union today issues a statement declaring that a reduction wage of $12 a week, with one half of the journeymen receiving $15 a week, and none taken in above $20, will be demanded in this city on and after July 1. A minimum rate of $4 is set for work done on Saturdays. Instead of presenting the new schedule to the boss barbers at once, the union has referred the matter to a committee.

PRETTY GIRL WHO IS FASTING TO REGAIN HEALTH

RUTH ARMSTRONG

NEW YORK, May 25.—Fat women take notice! Miss Ruth Armstrong, who is nineteen, has solved the get-thin-quick problem —and without drugs or doctors, for her fasting scheme is proving successful beyond her greatest expectations.

At her apartment, Claremont avenue and 127th street, the young California woman told how she has been able to get along without food since May 9.

"I have never been better physically," she said. "I wanted to take a swim at Coney, but my mother would not let me, because she feared I might get chilled. Still, I will not wait much longer before I have a fling in the surf."

Miss Armstrong has reduced her weight from 160 pounds to 144.

Instead of feeling weak, I feel full of energy and vim," she said.

WELLS MEMORIAL HAS BUSY YEAR

The Wells Memorial Association had one of its most active and useful years of its existence last year, according to the annual report of the officers, which has just been made public. The co-operative features of the institute, including savings in coal, wood, flour and other household necessities, and the benefit society, which helps to support members when ill, were thoroughly used and of great benefit. Probably the greatest value of the institute lies in the fact that it provides a social headquarters for many young workingmen and women where they meet to enjoy lectures and concerts under conditions which are normal and healthy. The publicity for the year was $1,500, and it is hoped this will be made up by those interested in the work of the organization.

PRESS CLUB DINNER IN NEW QUARTERS

The Press Club is going to have a dinner Tuesday night to celebrate its introduction to new and commodious quarters. So far, quite conventional. But so are the speeches. Without warning the vicinity will be called upon. Anybody who delivers what sounds like a prepared speech will be fined to pay the least. The dinner will be attended by fully a hundred members.

FEDERATION TOPIC OF MANY PRIESTS

The semi-annual conference of the Catholic clergy of the Boston archdiocese had its closing session today, when the orations assembled in the conference room of the Cathedral. There were 225 pastors present at the opening session, with Archbishop O'Connell presiding. "Federation" was the subject discussed.

BOSTON WOMEN VERY REFINED, "RITA" SAYS

NEW YORK, May 25.—Mrs. R. R. Humphreys, better known as "Rita," the English novelist, took her final fling at Americans and Americans today when she sailed for home on the steamship Majestic after a six weeks' sojourn here. Mrs. Humphreys was sure that she would never, never grant another interview to reporters in this country. She admitted that she had had "a pretty good time," but had been considerably upset by being misquoted.

The newspapers said that I called American women cold and said they shrieked when they spoke," said Mrs. Humphreys, "and I never said anything of the kind."

"Didn't you say something about the way they ate?" she was asked.

"Yes." Mrs. Humphreys admitted, "and I will say something more. American people don't eat, they gorge themselves. That is why the women are so fat," she added.

"Boston Women Very Refined."

"Well, what do you really think about their voices," she was asked.

"I'll admit that their voices are high pitched," she went on, "but that can be excused because of the horrible noises that are going on in this city all the time.

"I found that in Boston and Washington the voices of the women are well modulated and soft. In Boston the women are very refined, while in Washington they are so cultivated that they are very delightful. The social set of Washington is charming."

"How about the men of America?"

"I don't know much about them. No one ever sees them. They stay in their offices all day long and are so busy making money that they don't pay any attention to social affairs. Your men are both handsome and they are not as polite as the English gentlemen. They treat their women as equals."

"Not Yet Men's Equals."

"Well, don't you think woman is equal to man in intelligence?"

"No, I can't say that I believe they have reached the same intellectual plane as men."

"How about the English suffragettes?" "I don't believe in that," said Mrs. Humphreys. "I think the suffrage movement very silly."

"How about American home life?"

"There isn't any," said the novelist. "Americans are too busy to have any home because she feared I might get chilled. but she had gone."

SEYLER DENIES GUILT IN DEATH OF JANE ADAMS

MAYS LANDING, N. J., May 25.—The climax of the trial of William Seyler, accused of the murder of Jane Adams on the pier at Atlantic City last February, was reached to-day when the defendant himself took the witness stand. His story was a complete denial of the charge of murder. With his testimony the defence was closed.

A dramatic moment in the accused man's recital came when, asked if he had seen Jane Adams fall overboard, he cried: "No, I swear by Almighty God that I did not."

He told of his movements and those of his brother on the night of the tragedy, with many details.

Herbert Pascoe, a contractor, had made an appointment to meet him at the Reading depot in regard to a job, he said. While walking to the depot, Seyler went on, two of the Adams children told Orvis that Alice, sister of Jane Adams, wanted to see him. "We met Jane Adams and her sister Alice," he said. "They spoke to Orvis and I walked a short distance away and talked. Orvis called me over and asked me to go to the moving pictures show.

"I told him I didn't have time, but finally consented. As we walked down to the pier Orvis was with the girls and I walked behind them.

"Orvis suggested that we have a drink, but the girls would not go. I gave Orvis 25 cents and he put 25 to it, buying admission tickets. We went into the hall room first. The lights were not on, so we walked out on the pier. When we got to the mission building Orvis said, 'Here's a chair large enough for two.'

"I walked away some distance and said, 'Come, let's go in.' Orvis said it was too cold. Orvis asked me to wait with Jane as he wanted to talk with Alice.

"Orvis and Alice walked around behind the mission house. I wanted Jane to go into the waiting room of the house, but she refused."

"Is that where you told the police that you last saw Jane Adams?" interrupted Seyler's counsel, Mr. Goskill.

"Yes, sir," answered the witness.

"Is that where you saw Jane Adams fall overboard?"

"No, sir, I did not say I saw Jane Adams fall overboard."

Then he continued. "She would not go into the building with me. She called for Alice three times and I walked back to see where Alice was. I walked to the Mission House and then back to the power house. Orvis had left Jane. While he had gone I looked around the side of the house, but Jane was not there. Orvis had come to the house and did not see her. I believed that

GIRL SAVES FATHER FROM PAUPER GRAVE

The work of Evelyn Marshall, aged seventeen years, to-day saved the body of her father from being buried in a pauper's grave. Alone, with hardly enough to pay for her lodging in the little room at No. 72 Chandler street, she worked from last night until this noon, won over the building trades department of the Central Labor Union, and got a promise of enough money to insure her father a Christian burial.

The father, J. H. Marshall, died yesterday at the Consumptives' Hospital in Dorchester. He had been ill for years. At one time he had been a member of the Amalgamated Workers' Union, but illness forced him to fall behind in his dues. The little girl was working and supporting herself, but she could not save enough out of her meagre wage. Yesterday she learned that unless she got money enough to take her father's body from the hospital before tonight the body would be buried at the expense of the city.

She went to the union and found that every officer of that organization was out of town.

Finally the story of the girl's fight reached the ears of Arthur M. Huddell, business agent of the building trades department of the Central Labor Union. He called a meeting of the board of governors. They had no authority to act, but they voted enough money to insure proper burial.

Miss Marshall had not yet learned of the union's action when the AMERICAN reporter saw her.

"Working as I do for small pay," she said, "it is hard enough to get along without saving anything. Father took care of his family well while he was able and did much for others. I haven't a friend to look to for advice. I would like so much to place it in a grave beside my mother's at Mt. Hope, but I don't see how I am going to."

Miss Marshall's mother died about seven years ago.

TOLD ABAFT THE FUNNEL

A COMPLETE SHORT STORY BY RUDYARD KIPLING

THE SHADOW OF HIS HAND

"I COME from San Jose," he said. "San Jose, Calaveras County California; that's my place." I pricked up my ears at the mention of Calaveras County. Bret Harte has made that sacred ground.

"Yes?" said I, politely. Always be polite to a gentleman from Calaveras County. For ought you know he may be a lineal descendant of the great Colonel Starbottle.

"Did you ever know Vermilyee of San Luis Obispo?" continued the stranger, chewing the plug of meditation.

"No," said I. Heaven alone knows where Mrs San Luis Obispo lived. I was not going to expose my ignorance. Besides, there might be a story at the back of it all. "What was the special weakness of Mister Vermilyee?"

"Vermilyee! He wasn't. Lot Vermilyee never had a weakness that you might call weakness. He had uncommonly certain principles. Then that weakness developed. Why, advertising Lot for the fairest girl in the town. Lot was a respectable sort of man and could have had his pick before starting for his wedding. It didn't please him to receive invitations from the boss fighting men of Frisco—professional invitations, you must understand. I guess he was the father-in-law to them.

"When he was married he consulted to locate in Prince, and started business there. A married man don't keep his people any. Old man Dougherty he must have counted on that. By the time Lot's first child was born he came around suffering for a fight. He painted Lot's house crimson. Lot painted that. He got a hold of the baby and began yanking it around by the legs to see if it could squeal worth listening to. Lot stretched him. Old man howled with delight. Lot couldn't sell hand his father-in-law over to the police, so they had it. Shook and cussed all round the front door, and the old man went up by the window. Lot half-heartedly. Lot was fair spent, not having had up his muscle. My notion is that old man Dougherty, being a boss fighter, couldn't get his fighting properly till Lot married into the family. Then he relished a running discussion to warm up his bones. Lot was too fond of his wife to disoblige him. Any man in his senses would have brought the old man before the courts, or clubbed him, or laid him out flat for Lot was always tender-hearted.

"Soon as old man Dougherty got his senses together off the pavement he allowed that Lot was considerable less of a fighter than he had been. That pleased the old man. He was plastered and cauliked up by the doctors, and as soon as he could prove he intended to see Lot made remarks. Lot didn't much care what he said, but when he came to casting reflection on the parentage of the baby Lot said the office door had played round his half an hour till the walls glittered like the scouring sun. Old man Dougherty crawled out, but he crowed as he crawled. 'I raise the blessed saints,' he said, 'I kin get my fighting alone or my meat.' Lot've have prolonged my life a century.'

"Course Lot would like to see him dead now. He is an old man, but most amazing tough. He has been fighting Lot for a matter of three years. If Lot made a lucky bit of trade, the old man would come along and fight him for luck. If Lot lost a litter, the old man would fight him to teach him safe speculation. It took all Lot's time to keep even with him. No man in business can tend his business and fight in strange. Lot's trade fell off every time he laid himself out to stretch the old man. Worst of it was that when Lot was made a deacon of his church, the old man fought him most terrible for the honor of the Roman Catholic Church. Lot shipped, of course. He always whipped. Old man Dougherty was made young among the softdeacons and lauded Lot for a boss pugilist, not meaning to hurt Lot's prospects. Lot had to explain the situation to the church in general. They perceived it.

"Old man Dougherty he fought on Agnes' account on him. Lot always whipped but nothing would satisfy the old man. Lot shook all his teeth out till his jaws were as bare as a sandbar. Old man Dougherty was always hoping his invitation to the dance. They fought.

"When Lot shifted to San Luis Obispo, old man Dougherty he followed after craving for his fight. It was cocktails and fisticuffs from first to last. Lot hankered after him. He grew on him. Lot hankered after him. He grew on him. Lot hankered to see him gently because of his wife. The old man could grow at that and Lot prospered. Lot had to explain the situation to the church in general. They perceived it.

"Last I heard of Lot he was staking into the tomb. 'It's not the fighting,' he said to me, 'but the dirtied insolency of the divorce. He knows I can whip him, but he won't stand upright for him out. Lot said it, 'practise his cruelties or gouge him. Then show he foolishly still found. I can't lay him out,' said Lot. 'He's my father-in-law, and that don't fit strike you. I feel to be thankful for.' If he had been a Jew he'd have fought on Sundays when it would have brought him no profit. Lot was with him; the old man knows my soft spot for Lot, and he always 'defeated.' Lot's sorrow is that thankfulness of Lot's is nothing more nor less than cussed affection.' Says he said nothing.

SCIENTISTS BAFFLED BY FATAL GAS

NEW YORK, May 25.—Scientists who have attempted to discover the nature of the gas which caused the death of Charles Courter Dickinson, organist and former head of the Carnegie Trust Company, confess to-day that they are baffled. Mr. Dickinson died at St. Luke's Hospital of congestion of the lungs caused by the inhalation of a mysterious, noxious, metallic gas at the laboratory of Dr. F. N. Lange at Scranton, Penn.

V. V. B. Hedgepeth of Scranton, at whose instance Mr. Dickinson went to witness an experiment in the laboratory, was seriously affected by the gas, as also was the experimenter, Dr. Lange. Both will recover. R. C. Dickinson, a brother of Charles Dickinson, gave out first news of the mysterious tragedy. He was in an adjoining room when the others were stricken, and was unaffected. Hedgepeth was seeking to secure financial backing from Dickinson and his associates.

R. C. Dickinson said that some time ago he and his brother left New York on Monday of last week, and went to the laboratory. There they met the chemist who was to perform the experiment.

"I lingered in the main room of the laboratory," he said, "after my brother and our friend went into the small room where the chemicals were being prepared. The chemist called out to me the name, as they were ready. I started for the other room and just then there was an explosion.

"I rushed in and found all three men gasping for breath and almost unconscious. The room was filled with a strange, stifling gas. My brother was taken to a hospital and kept there over night. As he did not improve, he was brought to a hospital here the next day.

"The case was a strange one. My brother's lungs became congested, just as though he were suffering from pneumonia, and his condition baffled every treatment physicians could devise.

"Dr. James R. English, my brother's physician, found himself helpless, and he called two consultants, Drs. Janeway and Delafield, who were completely puzzled by the nature of the case. We then sent for the chemist who performed the experiment, who suffered only slightly, in the hope that he could suggest an antidote, but he could do nothing."

HEARINGS FOR ALL URGED BY WALKER

May the day be far distant when the pressure of business will make it necessary for any Massachusetts citizen to be turned away from our halls of legislation without a hearing! We have all been talking much of late about the spirit of unrest and discontent which seems to be so widespread. The weak and the poor feel that the rich and powerful care nothing for them. I do not believe for a moment that this spirit of class hostility and discontent is deep-seated or permanent in our free country. The American people are sympathetic by nature and they love fair play. At heart they are really satisfied with the conditions of life. Fortunate.—Joseph Walker, Speaker of the House of Representatives at the dinner of the Massachusetts Legislature at the Quincy House last night.

ORDERED TO PAY $1 A WEEK FOR LIFE

PATERSON, N. J., May 25.—Charles D. Martin, when brought before Circuit Judge Bierck in contempt of court in a suit to liquidate an indebtedness of $601, was ordered to pay $1 a week until his obligation is cleared.

Expert accountants roughly estimate that Will take Martin at least twenty-five years to pay the debt and interest. He is now forty years of age and will be sixty-five, the average life, when he will receive his receipt "paid in full."

TROLLEY WIRE FALLS, HORSE BURNED

Charles Spinney, a driver of a produce wagon, unmindful escaped electrocution when a huge limb of an elm tree fell, pulling down a trolley wire, in Ferry street, Malden. The wire fell upon the rail, charging it. Spinney's horse stepped on the rail and writhed in convulsions. The driver was thrown from the seat of the wagon to the street, but escaped injury. The horse was considerably burned.

B. & M. MEN ARE FIRM.

The 1,200 freight handlers employed in the local terminals of the Boston & Maine are not willing to accept as final the fourteen-cent-a-day increase in wages recently given them by the management, but will insist upon the original twenty-five-cent raise demanded. SOUTH BOSTON RALLIES IN SOLID PHALANX AS "BOOM" SLOGAN SOUNDS

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS FOR SOUTH BOSTON BOOMERS

WHAT is the Best Way to Boom South Boston? Answer it.
One Hundred Dollars in Gold for the Best Seven Answers.

Here are the Rewards:

BEST ANSWER, $50; SECOND, $20; THIRD, $10; FOURTH, $5; FIFTH, $5; SIXTH, $5; SEVENTH, $5.

Any one may compete; any resident of any place. Make your plan as brief as you can. Send it to:

"BOOM SOUTH BOSTON,"
Care Boston American.

One hundred dollars in gold lies in the counting room of the Boston American waiting to be claimed by men, women or children with ideas.

Fifty dollars of this gold will be paid for ONE good idea.

Have you an idea?

How would you boom South Boston?

The Boston American is so anxious for a Boom South Boston suggestions that it will pay fifty dollars for the best suggestion, twenty dollars for the second best, ten for the third and five dollars each for the next four.

All that is necessary to earn this money is a first-class, helpful idea. The problem is not impossible. Here is a great compelling centre. Its accessibility and its population are rich in promise to the manufacturer.

It is healthful and beautiful. How would you boom it? How would you make use of its very apparent advantages?

The Boom movement was inaugurated at a meeting of the South Boston Citizens' Association, when a committee of ten was appointed to confer with representatives of the South Boston Trade Association, and the Andrews Square Association.

The Boston American was anxious to help in this movement. With the approval of the officers of the three organizations, all of whom have consented to serve on the committee, which will award the prizes, the Boston American makes its offer.

It will be impossible to print all the letters that have come to the Boom South Boston editor. They are still coming.

Mr. Patrick J. Flannery of No. 5 Skinner street, Brockton, one of those who writes to-day, says much in little. Mr. Flannery makes but one suggestion. He says:

Brockton, Mass., May 24, 1910.
Boston American Contest to Boom South Boston:

Have Board of Trade wanted.
(Signed) PATRICK J. FLANNERY,
No. 5 Skinner street, Brockton, Mass.

Women Are Interested.

No permanent good can come from a Boom South Boston, or a boom anywhere else, without the assistance of the ladies. The Boom South Boston editor may be pardoned, perhaps, if he confesses that the suggestion of Mrs. Bert J. Lynch, of No. 73 L street, concerning first impressions, and the need of a more attractive entrance to South Boston, has impressed him to no small degree. He also be pardoned if he says he has in mind just the Sunday paper that Mrs. Lynch thinks of. It is the one, let us not doubt. Read Mrs. Lynch's letter:

Dear Sir.—A few suggestions on the boom question. Utilize the Commonwealth Lands for a leather industry. A splendid area for leather houses, with great railroad facilities. In course of time tanneries will spring up, and we will soon see a terrible body for freight and accommodations. Build houses in sections where the factories are put in for these employed; rents to be according to wages received. Run the cars from the Point, straight through L street to the heart of the city, with a transfer station at L and Third, doing away, if possible, with the Dorchester street transfer station. Have a good opera house, with star attractions; a large department store on Broadway; a good public library, a building, not a store, for books of learning and education; a Sunday paper, giving details of happenings in the district and advertisements of great bargains. And, above all, I do wish we could have a decent transfer station on Dorchester avenue. The entrance to South Boston is unlikely. Fling that very thing with it for people living here. First impressions make a great deal. You must remember from all sides that "South Boston is all right, but the entrance is so dirty." Trusting these few suggestions may help the cause, I am,

(Signed) MRS. BART J. LYNCH.
No. 73 L street, South Boston.

Award Without Prejudice.

Several of the best letters have now been placed before the readers of the American. The contest, if such it may be called, is still open. The Boston American desires to hear from everybody. The following letter from Benjamin F. Trescott, a native committee, headed by Mayor Fitzgerald, will be passed upon without favor or prejudice. The author of the best suggestion, whether he lives in West Roxbury or West Rutland, will get fifty dollars in gold.

Can you use fifty dollars? HOW would you boom South Boston?

It is peculiarly and sincerely gratifying to the management of this newspaper that its interest in South Boston, and the future of South Boston, is appreciated by the representative men of that section. Some of these citizens have been saying things to reporters for the American. We think while we quote them:

Postmaster H. Tresdrell: "I am very glad the AMERICAN has adopted this plan of calling attention to what the peninsular district needs. If every one would take an interest in the welfare of the community it would soon boom. We have prosperous ever here. All we require is that our good points be more generally known. We have been postmaster for eighteen years, and I endorse any effort that will make known the excellence of this part of the city."

C. C. Chapman, for forty years in the hardware business on Broadway: "This is all right. Tell us more about what South Boston is. People do not know our advantages as they should. Your plan will give them a shaking up."

Henry Bowes of Broadway, one of the best-known real estate men in Boston: "We are largely the victims of prejudice. The boom will come to us, in this locality, when we remove it. I heartily endorse the approve of any method, like that the AMERICAN is putting forth, and I sincerely wish that the best results may come from it."

Says Boom Has Begun.

P. F. Carey, one of the largest dealers in household furniture in New England, whose stores are on Broadway: "Good for the AMERICAN! Let us talk about what we need here. Let us agitate. That is the way to get us started, and keep it up. No doubt people will have their eyes opened to what South Boston is, if the AMERICAN can do it, then that paper is doing a noble work."

C. P. Mooney, a well-known real estate agent: "This is commendable for a newspaper. We do not really need any boom over here; we need to be reminded that the 'boom' is on. It has been on for some time. We are booming. We are building one work, improve the larger lower part of Broadway, put up more modern buildings, and keep in touch with the natural beauty of the district."

Dr. F. W. Stuart of No. 588 Broadway: "I have lived all my life in this district. We are holding our own, and we are grateful for the interest of the AMERICAN. Many changes have taken place in the part of the city where I reside, and South Boston has often been unfairly treated. When it is understood, and when its possibilities are understood, there will be greater appreciation of what it is. I approve of any plan which will give the truth about this community, and I hope the plan of the AMERICAN will succeed along these lines."

These expressions of appreciation should cheer us along to do up. The question is, How would you boom South Boston?

Give your idea to the problem. The reward is great, in other things than gold. How would you boom South Boston?

Please write on one side of the paper only. Mail your letter to "Boom South Boston," in care of the BOSTON AMERICAN. And, again please, do it now!

HARVARD'S INCOME NEAR A MILLION

The income from the invested funds of Harvard College for the last fiscal year totals almost a round million dollars, according to the last report made public to-day. The exact figures were $966,113. The investment fund increased about two and a half millions since 1908.

A glance at the investments of the college shows that an unusually good rate of interest is paid on the notes, stocks, bonds, real estate and so on of the college, it making an average of 4 2-10 per cent.

According to the treasurer's annual report for the year ending July 31, 1909, the investments totalled $22,716,759, producing an annual income of $966,113, as compared with an investment fund of $20,269,992 in 1908, an increase of $2,446,767. The investment fund is made up of general investments amounting to $14,036,387. The following table shows the classification of the general investment funds and the income received from each class.

SPITZER SAYS HE CONFESSED TO CLEAR NAME

NEW YORK, May 25.—Officer Spitzer, the convicted and pardoned sugar trust employe, on whose testimony the government relies to convict Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining Company, and his five co-defendants, was subjected to a grilling cross-examination in the Federal Court to-day, but baffled his inquisitor at practically very turn. The cross examination was conducted by Clarence E. Lexow who turned first to the pardon given to Spitzer by President Taft after he evident intention of showing that Spitzer came to New York to appear in the case to the hope of securing a reward.

"When did you receive the pardon?" asked the lawyer.

"An hour before I took the witness stand in the trial," he replied. "It was delivered to me in the office of the United States district attorney."

No Promise of Reward.

Before going on the stand Spitzer said: "My confession was absolutely voluntary. It was made without any promise of reward or executive clemency. It was simply a case of a smitten conscience. I could not even because of the lies which I had told at the trial. The knowledge that I had committed perjury weighed so heavily upon me that I could not determined to make a clean breast of the whole disgraceful affair. I did not dream that it would bring about my liberation."

On the stand he said, when asked if he knew a pardon was on the way: "Yes, I had no idea that I was to be pardoned. I left all my things in the Atlantic prison, telling one spy to pack my trunks. Lawyers that if you made a confession it would lead to the capture of the men for which Mr. Lexow——"

"Why, you mean Mr. Havemeyer being dead," replied the witness. "I did.

Wanted to Clear Name.

The witness told of his experience in the Atlanta prison.

"Colonel Flynn went to the prison to see me," he said, "and I thought I was going to be released. He came to me and asked if he could do anything. I told him that I could get over the line I had told and that I wanted to clear my conscience. I told him I could not stand the torture."

Questioned further, he said that he had not been a willing witness in the first trial and that he knew "he would be done for" if he did not perjure himself.

"I am here to clear myself of those lies," he said. "I feel it was my family's due to have the truth told and my name cleared."

Spitzer testified that a talk with one of the defendants, Harry W. Walker, formerly associated with Havemeyer, had urged him to confess. Walker merely shook his head.

ARCHBISHOP O'CONNELL ANSWERS UNITARIANS IN TALK TO FORESTERS

Faneuil Hall is the scene to-day of the thirty-first annual convention of the high ranking Court of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters. Some 300 delegates, men and women, are present from all sections of the State. They represent a membership of 50,878, all prominent Catholic men and women in their respective localities.

At 8 o'clock the delegates assembled in St. Mary's Church, North End, for a solemn memorial requiem mass offered for the deceased members of the order by Rev. John O'Neil, high chaplain of the order.

After the memorial service the delegates proceeded to Faneuil Hall, where the convention was called to order by High Chief Ranger John F. Harrigan of Worcester.

Mayor Fitzgerald was greeted with applause as he came forward on the platform to officially welcome the convention to Boston.

Reviewing the history of the order since the last convention High Chief Ranger Harrigan said in the last fifteen months the order had gained 2,871 new members, the largest yearly gain in thirty years. The reserve fund has grown from $261,000 to $305,000, during the year $27,000 was paid to death benefits.

The death of Major John J. Leonard, for many years high secretary-treasurer of the organization, was referred to in feeling terms and high compliment was paid by the speaker to the efficiency of Daniel H. Mahler who was chosen to fill the office of high secretary-treasurer when Major Leonard died last November.

Archbishop's Address.

Archbishop O'Connell was hearty and frequent applause from the assembled delegates showed that they largely endorsed the archbishop's views. He spoke in part as follows:

"I rejoice heartily in the growing friendly and cordial social spirit. Each step it makes forward means an advance in the material and spiritual happiness of our Catholic community. I wish that every Catholic home in the State would give his name and his yearly contribution as members of the Catholic Order of Foresters. That would be our answer to these disturbers of the peace of mind and heart of our working men—these violent rusters who talk so much and let other men do it.

"Unfortunately for mankind there is no conscious side to even the coarsest things of life. The fruitful dwelling on the problems of good men to discuss the religious problems of the age is undoubtedly a serious and a serious attitude. A man who will not do it reverence, though there is almost no article of his constitution he will not disagree. No matter. The fact that a body of fellowcitizens assemble for the purpose of working out a spiritual good is in itself a sign of extraordinary value to their friends. But I hope I will not be misunderstood by these words if I go even further if I say that perhaps more unreasonably it had an element of religious fervor.

"Attack on Catholics."

"One of its first meetings was devoted to an attack upon Catholics, and one of its speakers, a New Yorker, I believe, declared that the Archbishop in his campaign against Socialism showed himself a worthy son of the church by the superstitious, idolatrous, reactionary, mediæval principles upon which he based his campaign.

"Now, I beg to say that there are a few elements of surprise and paradox in the record of this first meeting of the Unitarians in Boston as well as a very humorous side to the whole affair. For humorous it is surprising, as well as amusing, to find this society, whose watchword is free thought and free speech, vieing with the rigor of the old Spanish Inquisition in the virulence of its tone against free speech when we Catholics assert our right to it. So, too, great dogmas are mere freedom of thought and speech for them alone.

"This, I repeat, is surprising as well as amusing. Secondly, we should have thought that Unitarians, whose intellectual superiority is so widely asserted, might be able to change, at least a little, the old-fashioned, reactionary, superstitious, idolatrous, etc. Why, these are the same words we were accustomed to in the seventy ago. Is it possible that the Unitarians have not progressed in their English as well as politeness in all this time?

New York Reading of Us."

"Again Mr. Holmes of New York has evidently been reading about the work of the Archbishop of Boston. This is surprising. A New Yorker actually interested in the doings of a humble and hard-working Bostonian—and that Bostonian a Catholic Archbishop. This is, indeed, unprecedented in the extreme. Bostonians, take courage. Here is a new evidence of our growing importance. New York is really reading about us. We now at last famous.

"But to my mind the really humorous event of the meeting was the adoption of Socialism by the Unitarians. This is the crowning touch of the funny. We as Catholics become Socialists there would be something to say about it, but nothing for Unitarians. We should be deadly in earnest and they would soon be very corry for our conversion to Karl Marx's doctrines. For we are poor, we have nothing to lose materially and everything material to gain by the change. We should be logical in our Socialism as we are in our religion. The Catholics are in the homes, in the mills, in the workshops, in the mines, in the factories, in the government. Suppose hat by any assembly, we did suddenly become Socialists! Have the Unitarians stopped to consider the consequences? Let them look out for. We are not and never will be Socialists. But that is not because our religion should not be the gainers, and incidentally she would be the lowest.

"Now, for the other reasons which we suppose being idealistoms, and the rest of the spirit of fine-wrought feeling for the noble the lofty consideration of these supremely enlightened men of transcendent intelligence.

Easy to Make Change.

"We hope, we repeat, however, that it is not too late for our Unitarian friends to resolve believe to these moral principles, and are restrained by them. And they had better be careful before voting for Socialism. Again, it the Unitarians are sincere, if they believe in Socialism, why, that is the easiest thing in the world to give us the proof of their sincerity. How about the mills, the shops, the Industries of which they are proprietors? How about the enormous wealth which they possess? Will they forthwith proceed to distribute it? And so we will may kindly await the day? Some of us will be there.

"If you an glad of all this talk against myself and my colaborers in the good of Catholic action from that special quarter, and this is the reason: After the publication of one Socialists we have been deluged with crank letters accusing us of being in the pay and service of the trusts, the friend o fthe rich, the bought agent of corporations, etc., etc., the usual number.

"Of course, all this is absurd on the face of it. Although millions are given annually by the rich to every good work, institution, even including cat chapitals, we never receive a cent, though our work is potent to the world and to the interests of good order in society and the betterment of the poor and the sick, many of whom have spent their best days in the service of these same rich, who cordially are content to let us look after them out of the poverty of our good Catholic people.

"I personally have never in my whole life received a gift from a rich man, a corporation, a trust or any one except my own good people. Such is the case for all of the accusations that we were swelling our coffers, which have been bought in, of course, ridiculously absurd.

Thanks for Mr. Holmes.

"But now I have to thank my friends, the cultivated, enlightened, and superior members of the meeting in the Arlington Street Church, whose spokesman, Mr. Holmes, so eloquently liberated us all publicly from the charge. Attributing our attitude to the superstitious, abortment of sin, as usual principles of which we are the traditional victims.

"Mr. Holmes, in all sincerity, I thank you. I would rather be thought superstitious than to be considered by you as your inferior in intelligence. I am quite willing to be thought the inferior of neither of which. I sincerely trust, you are guilty.

"Again in Arlington street has successfully for many years, and I am served some purpose—at least it was intended. Here it had better been intended.

It has been rather hard on Protestantism, which it has called a free church, never more to bear fruit, for only the wonderful and the able. But it could gladly with us Catholics, intolerance as it may, and invented any new philosophy and has left the archbishop off, poor ignorant man, by simply labelling him as a victim of superstition and mediævalism. Poor Archbishop! Good friends, we pity you for your blunders. We hope you will come to Boston especially the good one from New York, and don't forget to tell us the time of general distribution when it is settled upon. The Foresters will be on hand. We are organizing a delegation and a solid basis. It is no idle dream, no mere utopia. It is based on practical working out of a sensible plan whereby both the spiritual and material welfare of each of you is furthered and fostered.

"You have the church to guide you and honest, sensible men to lead you. Be true to your principles as Catholics and you cannot go astray."

LAY KEEL OF GREAT SHIP

QUINCY, May 25.—To-day is the Fourth of July for the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., one hundredth anniversary of the independence of this country from Straight rule. Every industrial was celebrated in this city to-day by laying the keel of the Pennsylvania battleship for Argentina. This ship is the largest one dollar now under construction anywhere in the world. At the genuine sent Admiral N. R. Gerrish and staff of naval officers to watch construction.

The laying of the keel began at 10 o'clock and the ceremony was simple. When the suitable section was put in place Adolfo Garcia, commander of the officers, Lieutenant Commander M. S. Bianchi, Lieutenant I. Estrabolo, Captain Diogenes Aguirre, Lieutenant-Commander Jose Valladares, Senior Lieutenant Osorio Fernandez, Electrical Engineer Desiderio Chaparro and Naval Architect Valerio Madero and several ladies sang Argentine's national anthem.

TWO MILLIONS IN NEW AUTO RACE TRACK

By J. C. KERRISON.

F. Carleton and George J. Dunham of the Royal Enfield Company have just returned from a 500-mile motor trip from Boston to Albany by way of the Berkshires. They left here on Saturday afternoon, going direct to Westfield, where they delivered a car to J. A. Cream. From Westfield the trip took them to Pittsfield, thence to Albany. The return was made by way of Pittsfield, North Adams, over Hoosic Mountain, Greenfield, and Boston, making a distance of 500 miles in all, through a territory replete with interesting and picturesque spots.

The experienced not the slightest difficulty, the car running admirably from start to finish. Mr. Dunham returned to the factory at Cleveland thoroughly well pleased with the business outlook in this section. Before starting for Cleveland, he told me that he believed that this was the biggest year in the history of the industry. His factory has been run full time throughout, and the company is now making preparations to make even a larger output next year.

Another track project has been launched at Philadelphia, the Philadelphia Motordrome Association having been incorporated under New Jersey laws, with a capital of $100,000, to construct a two-mile track at Clementon, N. J., about twelve miles from the Quaker city. The men interested in the project are planning a surface of changed crushed rock, a grand stand to seat 25,000 persons and bleachers to accommodate 30,000 persons. Garages are to be provided under the proposed grand stand, and two clubhouses are also planned, one for automobilists and one for athletes.

To clean a carburetor of dirt, open the aperture at the bottom and let the contents run out. If this does not have the desired effect it will be necessary to take the carburetor to pieces and clean each portion thoroughly, especially the filter, which is apt to be choked. A tiny piece of grit or other obstruction may interruptedly, totally or partially block the jet or tiny passage leading to it, being carried there by the flow of gasoline and dropping back when the pressure ceases.

Adjusting the flow will in that case be dropping as the sitting chamber will flood all right temporarily, but when the engine be started the floating particles will be drawn into the jet and quickly clog condition the jet should be removed, a thin wire or an ordinary hairpin being used through it and then cleaned out. Needles should not be used on account of the risk of the end breaking in the jet, necessitating an enlargement of the hole and subsequent trouble with the carburetion.

$200,000 DAMAGE IS DONE BY BIG STORM

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—The damage done by the terrific storms which late yesterday lashed eastern and central Pennsylvania and New Jersey was to-day estimated at over $200,000. Throughout the section great damage was suffered, terrific homes were unroofed, telegraph and telephone wires whipped down, the roads and trees torn up. Besides the death of two persons at Pottsville, Mr. Carmel, reports received to-day show that several persons were injured, principally by flying debris.

LEAVES $1,000,000 FOR CATHEDRAL

WASHINGTON, May 25.—A fund, which it is believed will amount to about $1,000,000, for the maintenance and the erection of the National Cathedral of the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral, here being built in Washington, was founded to-day by the will of the late John A. Kasson of this city. It will be known as the Kasson Cathedral Endowment Fund.

MEETING OF CARPENTERS.

With 6,000 men affected by their demand for an hourly minimum of fifty cents per hour, and good prospects of the greater number getting the raise without a strike, the different local unions affiliated with the Carpenters' District Council to-day are circularizing the city, announcing a monster mass meeting of carpenters at Faneuil Hall on Saturday night.

COLEMAN'S WOMAN FRIEND, IN TEARS, TELLS OF MEETING KELIHER

shal Waters. "Big Bill" Keliher was puffing a cigarette when Coleman passed. Keliher gave him a glance, turned to a friend with whom he was talking with a short laugh, and in a moment there came to his ears the clang of the closing door of Coleman's cell.

Coleman Meets Lockhart.

Coleman did not meet the glance of Keliher's eyes. Mrs. Coleman and Miss Hightower chatted with Coleman for a while through the bars of his cell, and then Wilson W. Lockhart walked into the room and he and Coleman talked in a friendly way for a while. Mrs. Coleman and Miss Hightower went into the court room and took their regular seats in the jury box to the right of the bench. It was after they sat down that the steel-like spark of fire flashed from Mrs. Taylor's eyes, as they shot a glance at her rival.

Lockhart was called to the stand. He was dressed in a somewhat more summery way than yesterday, when he almost wilted on the stand from the heat and the sharp prodding he got from Attorney Dan Coakley. Lockhart had a light brown suit with no waistcoat.

The cross-examination of Lockhart was continued by Attorney Coakley.

Q.—Did you see any friends yesterday after leaving the prison, and did you tell over your testimony with them? A.—No.

Talked With Garland.

Q.—Now let's see if I can refresh your memory. Didn't you have a talk yesterday after the court session with Assistant District Attorney Garland? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you say now that you didn't talk about your evidence with somebody after the court? A.—Well, I think I did.

Q.—Didn't you say to Assistant District Attorney Garland that you'd do better to-day in your testimony? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Can't even remember from last night? A.—Well, I can't remember that.

Q.—Did Assistant District Attorney Garland say to you last night, "What in hell is the matter with you? A.—No.

Q.—Sure of that? A.—Well, I don't remember that he said it.

Q.—Now, I want to take you up in the Hotel Bellevue, where you were with Miss Hightower, Miss Arnold and Coleman. Wasn't made a party of four, and this was after tea and Coleman had been indicted. Do you recall the occasion? A.—Which occasion?

Quartet at the Bellevue.

Q.—I know you were there more than once, and with you there the quartet was made up, the two ladies, you and Coleman. I refer to the first time after the indictment, when you stayed there quite a while. Do you recall that time? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you hear Coleman say, talking to the two women about you, "If Lockhart had done what Van Bluroom did, if he had held himself when the officers were trying to get all he knew, he wouldn't be indicted to-day." Van Bluroom got away all right?" District Attorney French objected to the question, and it was excluded.)

Q.—Is that room did you hear Coleman say to you that Van Bluroom told a good story and that Van Bluroom was just as guilty as Coleman? (Excluded).

Q.—Did you ask Coleman this question in that room: "Did you flip off a certain five in Cambridge during the final? I drew its money out of the bank?" and did Coleman in reply say to you, "No, no; if I tipped off anybody I would have tipped off to you, so that your stud could have drawn her money out of the bank? (Excluded.

"Keep Quiet."

Q.—On your direct examination you said that you met a Mr. Hallet at the Back Bay station and that you went to his office. Is he the Mr. W. L. Hallet of the Kissel Kar Kompany, the automobile concern with which Coleman was connected? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you talk with Mr. Hallet at his office about Coleman's case? A.—No.

Q.—You say that Hallet said to you at the Hotel Oxford? "Keep quiet, don't talk too much." Is that so? A.—Yes.

Q.—Up to that time had you said anything to anybody? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Is it that time you could not learned that Keliher knew that Coleman was taking money, and that you knew you? A.—No.

Q.—Up to that time you had not learned that Keliher knew of Coleman's wrong doing, had you? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't Coleman tell you he was going to Kansas City? A.—No, he told me that he was going to New York.

Q.—And was that from the time you thought he was going on a business trip? A.—Yes. He told me he was going to New York on a business trip.

Coleman Bought Tickets.

Q.—Who bought his tickets? A.—He did.

Q.—For what did you give Keliher one of your cards in the Hotel Oxford? A.—Keliher asked me if I was going under my own name and I said yes, and that I had registered that way. Then I gave him one of my cards.

Q.—Didn't you register there under the name of Drew? A.—No. I wrote my own name.

Q.—You wrote it on the regular register of the hotel? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you tell the grand jury that Keliher asked you for one to keep you quiet and not talk too much? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Didn't you tell the grand jury that you heard Coleman say there goes $2,000 after I gave Coleman and Keliher a roll of bills in the cafe of the Hotel Belmont in New York? A.—I don't remember.

(Here followed a long series of questions as to what Lockhart had told the District Attorney and his counsel. District Attorney French objected to further questioning and Judge Hale said to Attorney Coakley that he was making the cross-examination longer than was necessary, but allowed him to proceed.)

As to Talks With Counsel.

Q.—How many interviews have you had with your attorney, Mr. Morse, since your arrest? A.—I don't recollect.

Q.—Do you remember an interview over at the Coleman home when newspaper men, lawyers and policemen were present with you and Coleman? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was Captain Hurley there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you say this to Hurley? "I'm advised not to talk, but I'll be frank, Hurley, if you tell what I told you." A.—My mind is not clear.

Q.—Do you recall saying that in substance? A.—No.

Q.—Did Captain Hurley then tell things which you had told to him? A.—I don't remember. District Attorney French objected to the questions. Judge Hale cautioned Coakley not to follow along this line.

"The Snake Charmer."

Q.—Do you know a woman named Lucille Harris A.—No.

Q.—Well, do you know a woman named Harris, no matter what her first name is? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know a woman with a name that sounds like that? A.—No.

Q.—I have to be pretty blunt and continuous in my questions to you about women. It took me a long time yesterday to get at the identity of Miss Arnold and Miss Atwood. Now do you know a woman whose first name is Lucille, no matter what her last name is? A.—No.

Q.—Now we are making some headway. Did Miss Lucille have apartments on Columbus avenue. A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you and Coleman go there quite often? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now will you be so kind, Mr. Lockhart, as to tell us Lucille's last name. A.—It was Chaney.

Q.—Was she the woman known to the "boys" as the "snake charmer"? (District Attorney French objected and the question was excluded.)

Q.—Now who were some of the other women you met up there? A.—Well, one of the women was named Hunt.

Q.—Know any others? A.—I don't recall any others.

Q.—Did you go at any time from this Columbus avenue place with women to any other places? A.—Yes.

"Went to Keliher's House."

Q.—Where did you go? A.—The first time I went to Mr. Keliher's house. The second time to the Colonial Club.

Q.—Do you know a woman named Dollis Collins? A.—I do now.

Q.—When I say Dollie Collins I mean to use the common way her friends address her? A.—I don't know her.

Q.—Ever hear the name? A.—Yes, but I don't know her.

Q.—Now, on either of these two trips did you have any wine? A.—No.

Q.—Did you have any alcoholic drinks of any kind? A.—We might have, but I don't remember.

Q.—You were out pretty late the night you went to the Colonial Club, weren't you? A.—I don't recollect.

Q.—Was the fulness of your recollection due to alcoholic drinks? A.—No.

Q.—Have you told the jury here anything you didn't know when you were talking with Lawyer Coakley? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know that the indictments against you were all quashed five days ago? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you first know it? A.—Last Friday.

No Immunity Promise.

Q.—And it was last Friday that you appeared here first as a witness, wasn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—At what time Friday were you informed that the indictments were not pressed? A.—Just a few minutes before I took the witness stand.

Attorney French questioned in redirect.

Q.—Have your relations with Keliher been friendly? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Have you had any quarrel with him or do you owe him any money? A.—No.

Q.—Did you freely after your arrest, make a full statement to me? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was William J. Keliher, at the time you made this statement, under investigation, as far as you knew? A.—No.

Q.—Was any promise made to you by the government on your own matter prior to your appearance before the grand jury or at any time after? A.—Absolutely none.

Q.—To your knowledge, have hotel parties was much money spent? A.—I never saw a bill larger than $15.

Q.—Who paid the bills. A.—When Mr. Keliher was present he paid the bills.

Wine Supper Election Night.

Q.—When did you see the largest amount of wine bought. A.—On election night, January 11.

MRS. TAYLOR IN TEARS ON STAND

Mrs. Marguerite Taylor was very nervous and her hands were clenched as she took the stand in the Keliher prosecution. Many stood up to get a view of her. She was questioned by Mr. French:

Q.—Where do you live? A.—No. 74 Pleasant street, Cambridge. (The answer was so faint that Judge Hale had to ask the witness to repeat it.)

Q.—How long have you lived there? A.—About a year.

Q.—Before coming to Cambridge where did you live? A.—I have always lived in Cambridge, all but about six years.

Q.—Do you know Gerrish W. Coleman? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know William J. Keliher? A.—Yes. (The witness answered in a very short tone.)

Introduced by Coleman.

Q.—When did you first meet Keliher? A.—I met him a year ago, some time in May, at the Back Bay station.

Q.—Who introduced you to Mr. Keliher? A.—Mr. Coleman.

Q.—Do you remember what time of day it was? A.—Yes, it was shortly before 6 o'clock.

Q.—From what either end to you did you learn where they were going A.—To New York on the 5 o'clock limited.

Q.—Where were you living at that time?

A.—At the home of my parents, No. 88 Pleasant street, Cambridge.

Q.—From the first time you met Keliher until February of this year how often did you see him? A.—Once a week and sometimes twice or three times.

Q.—Where most often did you see him during that period? A.—At the Back Bay station.

Q.—At what time of day did you see him? A.—Between ten minutes of 5 and 6 o'clock.

Q.—Was Coleman always with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—And were they always going to New York together? A.—Yes.

At this point the court ordered a recess of five minutes. Mrs. Taylor left the witness stand and was seen to sit down and wept. In an effort to cheer her Lawyer Morse spoke to her and Mrs. Coleman left her seat and came over to sit with her.

Allow Witness to Sit.

Miss Hightower entered the room during the recess. She had been talking with Coleman in the marshal's office, but learning that Mrs. Taylor was testifying she left him and entered the court room.

When court resumed, Mrs. Taylor was allowed to sit during her testimony. With a sigh she pulled herself together and prepared for further questions.

Q.—In May of last year you were living with your parents at No. 88 Pleasant street, Cambridge? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you leave there? A.—That Summer.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—I went to Nantasket Beach.

Q.—When? A.—The first of last July.

Q.—Before going to Nantasket Beach the first of July, did Keliher say anything to you or did you learn how often he and Coleman were going over to New York together during May and June? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Where did you live at Nantasket? A.—At Waterfield.

Mrs. Taylor was still speaking in a low voice. She was in tears. Her eyes were kept lowered. Attorney Coakley complained that he could not hear the witness and she was asked to speak louder.

Q.—Who rented the house at Nantasket? A.—Coleman.

Spent Summer at Beach.

Q.—How large a house was it. How many rooms were there? A.—Seven rooms.

Q.—For how long was it rented? A.—From the first of July to the first of October.

Q.—Did Coleman come down there afternoons when he didn't go away on trips? A.—Not many afternoons.

Q.—Did he come down there evenings when he didn't go away on trips? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were other people there sometimes? A.—Sometimes my sister.

Q.—During the time you were there? A.—About one month.

Q.—Were other visitors there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever see Keliher there? A.—No.

Q.—Between July 1st and October 1st, did you know of Coleman going to New York? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you know that Keliher went with him upon those trips? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—State how you know? A.—Coleman used to tell me he was going.

Q.—Did you see Keliher and Coleman go anywhere during those months? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where? A.—On the Nantasket boat.

Q.—Anywhere else, did you see them together during those months. A.—At the Back Bay station.

Saw Them Off on Train.

Q.—How often there? A.—Once a week.

Q.—How could you come up from Nantasket? A.—Sometimes with Coleman in the machine and sometimes by boat.

Q.—Would you go to the station to see Coleman off on these trips? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Was anything said by either of them when you saw them together at the Train's time either as to where they were going?

A.—Mr. Coleman said they were going to Buffalo.

COMET BREAKS IN TWO, SAYS WESTERNER

CHICAGO May 25.—Halley's comet has broken into two comets according to the observations made last night by Dr. A. E. Douglas of the University of Arizona and reported to-day. Although the comet as a whole presented its ordinary appearance to the thousands of persons that gazed at it last night from the Chicago streets and from convenient windows the Arizona observer was able to distinguish two points of brilliance in the glow of the comet's head.

One part, the brighter of the two, according to Dr. Douglas, precedes the other at a distance of thirty seconds of arc, or about 3,000 miles.

"I could not see that the nucleus was divided," said Professor Daniel J. McHugh of the DePaul University, "but a division would not be strange. In 1882 two comets appeared traveling in the same orbit and Biela's comet was also seen to divide.

"I could see only about eight or ten degrees of tail, and through the telescope I could see almost none of it. The tail contains little that is solid. The cyclone is presenting a different appearance. It has until recently been lolled out toward the sun, but now it seems flattened and widened out more than I have seen it before. The solar energy is repelling it.

HIGHWAYMAN ASKS PARDON

NORTH ATTLEBORO, May 25.—The George R. Webster Co., manufacturing jewelers of this town, appealed to-day to the committee of pardons of the Governor council at the State House, Boston, for a pardon for William Belcosh, who about three years ago was convicted and sentenced to prison on a charge of highway robbery.

Three years ago a messenger boy, Green by name, employed by the Webster Company, and from the North Attleboro National Bank for $3,000, the company's payroll. On the way back to the factory three men attacked the boy in a public street in the main part of the town, overpowered him, snatched his satchel and escaped on the road and the money taken.

A crowd collected and the robbers ran. They dropped the money as they fled. Belcosh was later arrested and convicted. About six months ago Eugene Cardin was arrested on a charge of grand larceny, being charged with planning the robbery. He was one of the witnesses for the prosecution. Cardin was acquitted and now the company seeks Belcosh's pardon.

RATES BOSTON'S HEALTH HIGH

Boston is a city of excellent health, despite statements to the contrary, according to President John Ritchie, Jr., of the Boston Scientific Society and member of the Boston Board of Health. President Ritchie, at a meeting in Chamney Hall building, declared that Boston has a lower rate of infant mortality than many other American cities can boast, and that its rate in deaths from tuberculosis is rapidly declining, more so than can be claimed by any other city in the world.

SPEED BOYS OUT TO ANNEX SECOND GAME OF SERIES

DELANEY, JEFF'S FORMER TRAINER, TO COACH JACK JOHNSON FOR BIG BATTLE

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—"I think I will have Mr. Delaney to second me in my fight with Jeffries."

This was Jack Johnson's declaration at the close of an interview with the veteran handler of pugilists, Billy Delaney, at the Seal Rock hotel.

Delaney, to all appearances, simply dropped in on Johnson with a number of sporting men, who wheeled out to the camp in an auto. The members of the party were at lunch when Johnson requested the interview with Delaney, and the pair were closely closeted together for nearly an hour.

"Nothing has been settled yet," said cautious Delaney when approached on the subject. "I paid a visit to Johnson with a number of friends and I am going back to Harbin Springs. I will be down once or twice again before the date of the fight, and it is highly possible I will step out to see Johnson—not as adviser, though. I guess Johnson knows how to train. I am not going to say that Johnson has not made a proposition in regard to seconding, but I repeat nothing has been settled yet."

Both Men in Form.

Delaney would not express an opinion as to Johnson's condition further than to say that he did not see why both the big fellows should not be in the best of shape by July 4.

"I have been misquoted quite frequently, and I have to be careful as to what I say, especially concerning Jeff," said Delaney. "It is not a secret that Jeff and myself are not on the most cordial terms, and for this reason alone I am always guarded in my utterances.

"It was printed that I said Jeff could never get into shape. I didn't say anything of the kind. In the name of all that is reasonable, why shouldn't he be able to place himself in good shape. He is only thirty-five years old and he has been practically a mountaineer all his life. That kind of a man gets into good quickly, and for that matter I could name a dozen men who fought for the world's championship when they were over forty years old."

Jack Scores Corbett.

To-day Johnson boxed with his partners and there was a large gathering on hand to see the big black fellow at work.

When Johnson read and noted what Jim Corbett had to say about him he knitted his brows.

"That Easy Jim Corbett is having an awful cold to say about me, more than Jim Jeffries in fact," remarked Jack. "He's going to Jeffries' camp to quarter the big fellow up, and he knows Jeff will get me inside of fifteen rounds because I am slower on my feet, eh! Well, Corbett has his own warped figuring things, I guess.

"He knows that he was the original race horse of the ring and as Jeff caught him I suppose he thinks Jeff will surely catch me. But what's the use? Corbett could not be made to understand that he belongs to a geneology school of fighting. The older a fighter gets the vainer he becomes, and I expect when Jim like Corbett I'll be just as cheery as he is.

"I'll make a proposition to him. Let him come to my camp before he visits Jeff and have a few turns with the gloves in private, and then he will have something up-to-date to show Jeff when he gets to that place—what do you call it Howard —Boxardonnus?"

The police committee of 10 board of supervisors to-day granted the Broadway A. C. a permit recommended the granting of —to permit to conduct a glove contest of forty-five rounds, or less, in this city on the Fourth of July. The action of the police committee will, beyond a doubt, be ratified by the supervisors in full session next Monday, and then the permit will be transferred to Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason. This practically clinches the way for the Jeffries-Johnson championship mill.

A minority of members of the board attended the meeting of the police committee and argued against favorable action being taken. In a long-drawn-out argument Chairman Berget more than held his own with the churchmen, and clearly intimated that he did not consider the big fight a thing to be discouraged.

To-day a counter movement to the agitation recommended by the ministers against the prize fight is inaugurated. The down town association, the hotel men's association and other civic bodies meet at the St. Francis Hotel and plan to devise means of effecting the movement to hamper the promoters. The slogan of the civic bodies is "We want the fight."

JEFF SPRAINS HIS THUMB BUT BOXES 11 FAST ROUNDS

JEFFRIES' TRAINING CMP, HOWARDENNAN, Cal., May 25.—Boxing is daily gaining prominence in the regular training routine of Jim Jeffries in preparation for Jack Johnson. A couple of days ago Jeff went nine fast rounds of sparring with his training partners, and this morning he fought eleven full rounds in the sun-heated handball court. The big fellow is evidently developing his boxing skill to such an extent that there will be no danger of Jim Corbett getting such a superior display of science as would weaken the faith of Jeffries' followers.

The sparring work lacked nothing in ginger and roughness. In his bout with Joe Choynski, which was the last of the day, Jeff received a blow on his thumb that called forth an exclamation.

"I sprained that thumb the other day," said Jeff, "and when you caught me there I was like the devil. I guess it is not a serious hurt, though, and will be all right in a few days."

Bob Armstrong opened up the sparring bouts with Jack Jeffries, followed, exchanging three rounds. The big fellow, as he often does, needed a few rounds to get his blood into rapid circulation; but he retired the two boxers, perspiring hard and breathing heavily. Berger was taken on next. He fought Jeff hard, and got him worked up to such a pitch that Joe Choynski, the last of the quartet of sparring mates, was compelled to use his very best boxing skill to save himself from a heavy drubbing.

There is much talk about camp of the likelihood that Jeff may alter his original plans and hire two husky and fast young fighters, so that he can get all the fighting he wants. Camp critics have argued that Jeff is training for a fight, and not a Marathon race, and ought to devote himself entirely from now on to work with the gloves.

CORNELL ASKS ODDS ON RACE

ITHACA, N. Y., May 25.—Coach Courtney has picked the Cornell varsity and freshmen crews which will row Harvard to a standstill Pay.

He decided that Bowen shall stroke the varsity, thereby settling the competition between him and Distler, whom he supplanted less than a week ago.

Cornell has plenty of money to offer on the race, but is making odds of five to four. Even at this price there have been many Harvard takers.

The varsity eight will row as follows: Bow, Seagrave; 2, Simson; 3, Wakeley; 4, Hutchinson; 5, Sutton; 6, Day; 7, Names; stroke, Bowen; coxswain, Clark.

The freshman crew will row as follows: Bow, Brown; 2, Bates; 3, Thatcher; 4, Shaper; 5, Lum; 6, Nevins; 7, Elliot; stroke, Dole; coxswain, Crandall.

MIKE GLOVER MATCHED WITH KID GOODMAN

The Young Men's Club of Brockton will switch over to their new quarters at Palace rink from Canton Hall on Friday night when they hold their next bouts. Kid Goodman, the Ghetto champion, meets Mike Glover, the South Boston lad, in the main bout of twelve rounds, and this setto should packe the new quarters.

The preliminaries will be fast and the fans will see some boxing in the fourteen rounds that precedes the big bouts. Tony Mercuri of Roxbury meets Kid Murphy of South Boston for eight rounds, and "Cully" Simpson of Campello faces "Speed" Macey of Brockton for six rounds.

LONGWOOD TENNIS PLAYERS WIN ALL

NEW TRAINER FOR JOHNSON

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—The forces that will whip the 220 pounds of fighter Jack Johnson into fighting trim are assembling daily at the beach. Last night Tom Flanagan, the well-known trainer of amateur athletes, arrived from the east and when Johnson started on his run this morning Flanagan was at his side.

That was what Flanagan came across the continent for—to regulate Johnson's running. Since he began his road work he has been running without rime or rule. No attention has been paid to time. Flanagan will hold the watches on the runner and spur him on to quicken his time.

Johnson will take off six ounces of weight each day. That he might not jeopardize his chances by too much or too little running, Flanagan was secured while the fighter was in New York to look after that end of the work.

Flanagan is the man who brought longboast, the Indian marathon runner from an Indian camp to the world's championship. He is a brother of James Flanagan, the champion weight man, and is an expert on running. He declares that Johnson is in wonderful condition at present, an easy runner and in the flush of training.

JEFFRIES IN BOXING SHOW

JEFFRIES TRAINING CAMP, Rowardennan, Calif., May 25.—San Francisco fight fans will be given an opportunity of witnessing the daily routine of a training camp when Jim Jeffries appears at the Presidio arena Friday night. With the possible exception of trout fishing, the former champion will go through his regular training stunt, including shadow boxing, rope skipping, work with the gymnasium paraphernalia and at least six rounds of boxing.

This announcement was made to-day by Sam Berger, who has completed the preliminaries for the last and only public exhibition to be given by Jeff before he climbs into the ring with Jack Johnson on July 4.

Boxing program as at present outlined will consist of two three-round bouts with Joe Choynski and Bob Armstrong. There is a strong probability though that an extra three rounds may be added and Jim Corbett selected as the alfalfa farmer's opponent. Corbett expects to be here for the show and there is a popular demand for the setto between the former champions, and they may be induced to ive a display.

TWO LOCAL BOYS ASKED TO RUN IN NOVA SCOTIA

John Cooke and John Robertson, the two crack long distance runners of the Brookline gymnasium, have been invited to Amherst, N. S., to take part in the ten-mile road race and the feature of an athletic carnival to be held the week of July 10 in conjunction with the old home week at Amherst, the home town of Fred Cameron, the winner of the B. A. A. Marathon on April 19.

Among the starters in the race will be the fleet-footed Cameron and J. Corkery, also of Novia Scotia, who finished third in the Marathon. The invitations to the two stars of the winged "B" are the courtesy of Fred Cameron, who met defeat from Cooke and Robertson on April 9th in the ten-mile road race of the Cathedral A. A.

The two local boys are among the best in the section of the country. Robertson won national fame last Winter when he trimmed Clarke, the New Yorker, in a special twenty-mile race at the Charlestown armory in which he forced his rival from the "big town" to hang up a new indoor record for the distance in order to capture the "chevron."

The Brookline runners will leave for Canada some time into in June intent upon again doing the stunt of which Clarke was the victim at the amateur world's by his great work.

The local athletic is in charge of Dick Adler, the old Knickerbocker player, who is now road manager for the boys from "the wealthy town."

SENATE KILLS BILL FOR SUNDAY GAMES

ALBANY, N. Y., May 25.—The McGrath bill, permitting the playing of baseball on Sunday afternoons in cities, was defeated in the Senate, on a vote of 31 to 20.

The bill had passed the Assembly.

PLAN TENNIS TOURNEY.

The Norfolk Country Club has arranged a tennis tournament of mixed doubles, open to members and invited guests, matches being two out of three sets, three out of five. The tourney will be held next Saturday and Monday.

JEANETTE PUTS MORRIS AWAY IN THIRD ROUND; BLACKSMITH OUTCLASSED

Something dark hit Andy Morris, the local heavyweight, at the Armory A. A. last night in the third round and it was curtains for the East Boston farrier. Jeanette was the guilty one who caused the sudden exit of Andrew, as the colored fighter, fresh from his Paris conquests, was raced out of the fame line milling and got away with a quick win.

It was a poorly made match as Jeanette raised about a five to one favorite and completely outclassed the native son from the time the first bell sounded. It was just a question who could hit the hardest and Jeanette easily proved that he packed the big shot and the way he drove home his artillary when the barrier went up needed no setto to finish the S. C. S. signal for Morris.

While Jeanette was doing the slaughtering act in the third round and had put Morris down three times the latter's seconds woke up and tossed in the sponge, but the referee had rolled off the ten seconds and put a stop to the one-sided exhibition.

Jeanette Had the Reach.

Jeanette, looking as big as Jack Johnson, towered over Morris when they shaped up in the ring and he was the first to let a beating down the white man as if he had a sure thing. His long left shot out fast, coming Morris' features to a pulp, and following behind it was always a rib crushing right. This combination Morris took like a martyr for a round. Then Jeanette showed the assortment of swift uppercuts and right slams to the jaw that spelled destruction for the pale face.

The second round Jeanette rapped once on the jaw with his monster right and Andy staggered from cellar to garret, but got his foundations again and got safely through the bell.

It was all over in the third round when Jeanette caught Morris flush on the jaw with his right and Andy lanced on the back of his head. He managed to climb to his feet before the count of ten but a fusillade of rights and lefts laid him down again, but he refused to stay down and got on his pedals once more only to be slammed to the floor for the third time and was counted out.

Morris never had a chance with the big fellow, who outreached him and carried the stiffer punch and for such a short distance Andy took some heavy punishment. Jeanette seemed to be aware that he had Morris's number and lunged away on the body till he saw the opening he wanted, then put his fist to the mark.

The semifinal between Henry Hall of Boston and Tim Sullivan, two husky middleweights, was a rugged mill all the way and the referee called it a draw as the bouts were going even. Hall scored the most and had several rounds in his favor, while he seemed to have a knack in the windup.

They stove up each others bodies in good shape and Hall gave his foe an enlarged face for his ear before the tray ended as a souvenir. Hall finished up with a wide hard body pounding.

George Murray, the East Lynn scrapper substituted for Billy Nixon against Kid Burns of Albany, N. Y., and scored a win in five rounds by the knockout route.

Murray Lands His Right.

Betts looked easy for Murray when he was knocked down in the opening round, but it seemed to do him good for he fought a little better and was game in the mix with Murray, who was always trying to land that right hand and Betts tinchanting and ducking to get away from the punch. The Lynn lad finally connected in the fifth round when he drove home a right to the New Yorker.

Lorenzo of the North End and Tommy Flannagan of Cambridge opened the evening's entertainment in fast order in the first round, Flannagan showed the better in the leadings, but the Italian was always aggressive and kept the pace so hot that he got an even break.

FIVE-MILE RACE FOR SOMERVILLE BOYS

There will be a five-mile run in Somerville May 30, open to 40 active boys of that city, limited to fourteen to eighteen years. A cup is offered for first prize and there will be other suitable prizes. Entry blanks can be had from Mr. Roberts, Somerville Y. M. C. A., or Albert Howard, No. 11A Hillman terrace, Somerville. Entries close Saturday, May 28.

BAN JOHNSON PRAISES SOX

"Boston has a snappy team in the Red Sox" was Ban Johnson's comment on the team at the Back Bay after seeing them trim the Naps in the first game.

The big ruler of the American League is again at the game to-day to see the Red Sox repeat. He is on his annual tour of inspection around the circuit. It is his business to keep in close touch with all the clubs in the league. Naturally he is ill informed on the whys and wherefores of at least a team.

He has just completed a scanning of the eastern ball parks and gives out some interesting facts for the fans.

ROGER WOLCOTTS PLAY TWO GAMES MAY 30

The Roger Wolcott A. A. will meet the Buckhams at the Dunbar avenue grounds on Memorial Day morning, and a very close game is expected. Lamb and Hotchkiss will do the battery work for the South Boston team, while the locals will rely upon Janwin and Cannon.

In the afternoon the Rogers will play the Neponset Wanderers at the Neponset playground.

Owing to the disbanding of one team and cancellation of another game, the Rogers are without games for June 4 and 5, and would like to fill some away from home with the fastest of amateur unsigned nines. Frank W. Johnson of Arlington is manager of the team.

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

ANDY MORRIS WON'T GO UP against any high class men like Joe Jeanette again in a hurry. He proved a poor opponent for such a veteran as the big colored fighter from New York, who is going better than ever after his French invasion. His trip abroad has put some finish on him and there are few heavyweights in the East who can claim anything on him. Andy will have to run along in the second string for a while and keep away from the fast company.

WELL, WELL, JIMMY COLLINS leading the Eastern League batters with .365 for 23 games. That listens well to the many friends of the leader of the Red Sox in pennant winning days and there are still a big army who think that Jimmy should be in the big league. Jimmy knows better. He has acquired a regular Meat Trust appearance and can't keep up the speed of former days, but that hitting shows his batting eye is still there. But then, the Eastern League pitchers are not on the same level with the majors. It's good news to hear that Jimmy is shining once more in his new job as manager of the Providence Grays. He has the same big following of admirers in his new berth that he had here.

A FISTIC CONTEST OF INTERNATIONAL interest is the one to-night in Philadelphia between Jem Driscoll, the peppery Britisher, champion featherweight on the other side of the water, and Pal Moore, the pride of Slowtown. The six-round skit is hardly long enough for two such clever boys to settle who has it on the other, as a rally in the final round might change all the rest of the bout. It looks very much that Moore was accepting the claim that he is a featherweight, as Driscoll does not lay any claim to being a batsman. The Quaker fans are prepared to see some of the fastest fighting that has been staged there for some time.

Straight Tips, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Please side in the columns of your paper, as soon as possible, if the last fight between Pat Moore and Al Wagner is scored as a knockout against Moore, as I claim it is, as he was on a knockout. Is that it is recorded? A. FIGHT FAN.
It goes as a knockout.

Straight Tips, Boston American:
Dear Sir—In the report of the baseball game between Boston and Detroit, you credited Cobb with a new departure from the old "T. C." meaning put in advance. T. H. C., Boston.
"T. C." means center field; putting it that way sometimes saves abbreviating a player's name.

Dear Sir—Please be kind enough to answer in your column whether Frank Klaus and Bill Pauke ever met, and where.
Lamont, Mass. E. P. L.
They met in Pittsburg a few weeks ago. Thier was no decision, but it was generally thought, Klaus had the better of it.

JEM DRISCOLL FIGHTS MOORE

Two of the leading fighters in the world meet to-night at Philadelphia, when Jem Driscoll fights Pal Moore six rounds at the National A. C.

Driscoll is the undisputed champion of England at his weight, and Moore is unquestionably one of the very best boys on this side of the water. A sensational and possibly a historic bout may be anticipated.

There is a lot of interest among the fans here on the outcome of the match, as Moore is looked upon as a champion in the class he finally fits for. It's an open question now whether he is a bantam or a feather, but he poses in the former class.

Marie Dressler's latest hit in "Tillie's Nightmare" will be given free to readers of the SUNDAY AMERICAN. Words and music complete.

HARVARD MEN OFF FOR BIG TRACK GAMES

Harvard's track team leaves Boston today for Philadelphia, where it will compete in the intercollegiate games on Friday and Saturday.

Not a man on the team expects that Harvard will be the leading point winner. The best that the Crimson followers are counting on is that Harvard will finish in third place.

All of the men are in excellent condition. Pooch Donovan will have the athletes under his eagle eye, and will see that they are in form for the games.

"Reggie" Foster appears to be in good shape. He was put out on the track yesterday for a short time. He did not try any quick starts, or abrupt finishes.

Harvard has nothing except Foster to offer in the 220-yard dash. He should make a good showing in the 440, too.

Jaques should score at least a second place in the mile, and may do better. Harvard should take a first in the low hurdles with Gardner.

In the field events Harvard has two men who rank with the first. Captain Little in the broad jump, and Lawrence in the high jump should score high. Little has a chance to win the event.

The best that Harvard can even hope for is twenty-two points. Several of the coaches of other colleges are picking the Crimson for at least third place.

Before and After the Game

By DYKE CLARK

Joe Wood again covered himself with glory by getting the Naps' goat in the opening game of the series, and, by the way, this tripping the visiting team up at the outset counts a lot these days. Just show the other fellows that they are running second in the diamond warfare at the start and they get the cue that they are up against the real thing. It was Wood who had the Naps lassoed to the most while the grog behind him proceeded to use Mr. Joss rather roughly. There were nine Nap victims on strikes, Woods retiring the side in the seventh one after the other by the whiff route while he turned his best trick when fanning the great Lajoie, the champion slugger of the league.

With Addie Joss, the celebrated no-hit pitcher out of the way, the Speed Boys should be able to handle the rest of McGuire's pelict showers without glares. Joss had just the right amount of steam for the Speed Boys, and some of them swelled their batting marks, especially Duffy Lewis, Bill Carrigan and Larry Gardner. The super Lewis gets in the game the better he looks, and it's results that make a batsman's reputation, as Duffy is out to add lustre to his name and give the fans on the east where he roams in the Winter something to talk about. The other day it was a wonderful catch he made, and yesterday he was the shining light in getting one of the four tallies registered for his team.

It seemed like old times to see Engel prigg get into the game. He has kept the home fans worried about his indifference about whether he played the game at Boston.

WINNER OF FIGHT TO MEET SHEVLIN

To-morrow night's show at the American A. C. appears like a good one. Young O'Neil of Woonsocket meets Ted Young of New York in the star bout. The winner will meet Billy Shevlin June 6.

BOSTON C. NINE GOES TO MAINE

The Boston College nine that has been going at a fast pace since the season started, having beaten some of the fastest teams in the State, will leave Boston Friday night for Portland, Me., and remain there until Saturday when they go to Lewiston and play Bates. Along with the team and subs are going the two managers, two members of the college faculty and a number of the local students who have been following the team in every game this year.

The team that is representing the South end college is the fastest that played at the local Jesuit College in years. The battery is composed of Harrington and Falvey. Harrington came down from Holy Cross last year, where he was sub-pitcher. He has improved wonderfully under the careful coaching of "Pop" Mahar, formerly a Harvard outfielder. On first base Saturday will be seen Steve Mulcahy, who played last year on Holy Cross with Harrington. Mahoney is looked upon as one of the best hitters and fielders that is covering first in any of the Catholic colleges.

Second and third will be covered by Lawe and Murphy, who are real stick. Short will be taken care of by "Speed" Donahue, who is one of the best hitters at the South end college. In the field will be seen Captain Ryan, who will play left field, while McIntyre and Supple will play centre and right respectively. The Boston team will stay over in Portland until Sunday, when they will go to Storrs, Ct., and play the Connecticut State team there on the holiday.

Harvard Athletic News

By W. R. BURTON

Coach Courtney of the Cornell crew has no stretch-at device which he used successfully against Harvard last year and which might be used advantageously by the Crimson in baseball. Courtney observed that his second crew was faster than his first and he pitchelled the two crews before the race with Harvard, calling the second crew the first and sending them to victory against the Harvard eight. Some such arrangement might work well in Harvard baseball. It would at least have the advantage of making the members of the varsity nine work to hold their positions throughout the whole year rather than only in the early season as at present.

One of the Crimson fans thinks that he has discovered the reason for Harvard's lack of confidence on the diamond. He lays it to the method of training the men in early Spring practice, particularly in the cage. The varsity outfielders are allowed to burn them over to the candidates in the cage almost at the beginning of the practice season. The Harvard cage, with its shadows and uncertain light isn't a particularly encouraging place in which to learn the art of awaiting the pellet anyway, and the prospect of facing some swift and speedy curves in this dungeon doesn't by any manner of means increase the confidence of the candidate. On the other hand they become imbued with a sort of fear of the leather which is hard to shake. It is also said that the Crimson pitchers are in general brought into condition too early in the season.

Although Minot hasn't shone brilliantly as a hitter this season, quite the fact that the visiting outfielders do not dare to deal him out straight ones. The ball would probably be found somewhere over near the locker building after the beefy football man had leaned against it.

"Boneyap" Long has a long and characteristic windup which many think would be his undoing in a varsity game. Long however makes his windup so that he can throw to bases without making a balk so there would be little chances of a runner stealing while the cowboy was gyrating.

Yale's explanations of her defeat in the dual games by one point continue to be assorted and entertaining. The spectacle of the Elis making excuses after a victory by Harvard is unusual and is causing considerable comment and amusement in the Crimson university.

Although the Crimson's chances of making first place in the intercollegiate look pretty slim, Harvard men are looking for a number of surprises in the preliminaries Saturday. Coach Quinn does not expect that many of the track artists that he takes down with him to-night will be weeded out.

The Auto-biography of Mrs. Henpeck

By DOROTHY DIX

CHAPTER I.

I BELIEVE that the proper way to begin an autobiography is with the day you were born, but I shall begin mine with my wedding day; because a woman is really born into the world at the altar.

Before that she has floated about in a sea of dreams and vague expectancy, in which everything is unreal. She doesn't know what she is going to be, nor what is going to happen to her, or whether she is going to be the shrinking little creature beaded to support a successful husband and serve small children, or whether she is going to wear a diamond crescent and have a box at the opera and be too busy to do anything more strenuous than to say, "Home, James."

But marriage is the great awakener from dreams.

It is the test which has been put in the crucible, under fierce fire, and all that is base and that loosens her black hair. All of a sudden life becomes real and earnest, and a girl pretty much what she makes it. In a word, LIFE IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT, AND PRETTY MUCH WHAT SHE MAKES IT.

The Story of a Wife's Triumph

In getting that to that single little fact I had my innings, and while it is not for me to boast of my success, I will say that if there is a more completely domesticated, housebroken husband in the length and breadth of the land than mine, why, you will just have to show me, that's all. In proof of this, if you are not willing to take my word for it, I will merely state that my husband's mother and sisters never speak of him as anything but "Poor John."

That tells the tale of a wife's triumph, doesn't it? You never hear my mother or sisters or any of my girl friends call me "Poor Fanny," indeed, they always say to me, "How DID you do it?"

For people I suppose, ignorant of the victor, to which I am entitled, because when I married him John Abernathy was a high spirited, self willed, rollicking a fellow as you could find in a bachelor's journey, and it has taken time and perseverance and labor and purpose to mould him into the meek, humble individual that he is to-day.

But, thanks to me, he is almost a perfect husband, a man who goes to his office as regular as clockwork at eight in the morning and returns home at six in the evening, and works as hard if not is too tired to even think of such a thing as going out, and who would not think of such a thing as interfering in any way with any of my plans, or expressing an opinion that differed from mine.

When I look around and see the trouble my friends have with their husbands; when I see a man upsetting the housekeeping, bringing their friends home to dinner unexpectedly, and men who think nothing of putting on their hats and going to their clubs when they feel like it, and men who selfishly spend money on their own pictures instead of giving it to their wives to buy fine clothes with, and actually bossing women who are obliged to consider their husband's likes and tastes and whims in dress, I realized how clever I have been in the way in which I undertook my task.

Begin Right; That's the Way

For all of these women might have had husbands, even such as my John, if they only had as much sense as I had and had begun right. That's the secret. In order to manage a husband properly you have to begin at the beginning, and have a set plan, and most women haven't any plan about anything. Life is just a series of accidents to them, and when they do hit the bull's eye it is just a lucky fluke. Not because intentionally.

Thank God, I was never one of these casual females. I have always known perfectly well what I wanted, and have gone after it with both hands, and with a steadily gotten it. Now, when I was married I realized that to every man there is one who kisses and one who submits to be kissed; one who sits on a pedestal and one who burns incense before the pedestal; one who commands and one who obeys, and I said to myself that the best was good enough for me.

Therefore, I pre-empted the throne, so to speak, before John realized that there was any throne. I drank the cream off the milk and demanded the liver wing of the chicken, and were the good victuals and when there were any hard things to be done, or sacrifices to be made, I simply shoved them off on him.

When the servant left, it was he who had to get up and make the fire, and bring me my coffee. When we had children it was he who had to get up and do Marm-theos with colic and teething and night. When we were poor, it was he who had to wear his coat the second season, it was on me who did the petting and consoling, and humoring and keeping a happy home for him.

It was he who walked on eggs for fear of trampling on my prejudices or opinions. If he was late to dinner, I sent for the hot Summers, and worked while I was ashamed to enjoy myself.

Make Him Jump Through a Hoop

Do you catch my idea? I was simply resolved to subjugate my husband, and have the best of everything, to have him go to fetch and carry, and jump through a hoop at my command, as it were. Of course, the dignity would be gone, but it doesn't seem nice, and ladylike, and angelic, and all that sort of thing, that women lay such stress upon; but it is exactly what every woman has to do if she is to manage a husband, really, means in her secret soul.

So I as well call a spade a spade, in writing down the truthful account of my life, and here I have nerve enough in using my husband to the point where he is the envy of all his friends, and his mother, who is something of a man tamer herself.

Of course, to a wife, an autobiography is always confessional in its attitude to-ism, but I think that mine is justified by the high altruistic motive that inspires it, for I shall discuss in many of the trials common to all married people, and how to Get Rid of Your Husband's Relations and Old Friends, and Economize on the Financial Question, and to Break Him to Old Habits, and Accustom Him to His Duties, etc., in a way that should fill the world illuminating to all married people.

In especial I feel that my autobiography will be a missionary work for brides, who after persuing my experiences will escape long successes, will go and do likewise.

The Coquette's Progress No. 1—She Discovers Her Power By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Examiner

Here is the Born Coquette when she first discovers her power and makes all of her small world worship at her feet.

COQUETTES, too, are born and not made. This is a story of one. You can't put a yellow rose under one ear, bike up your little petticklets and start out at twenty, or thirty, or even sixteen, to be a great coquette. You've got to start on the very brink of the world, while your hair's just something to feel wet and not see, when your socks are white wool, and your booties have silk balls on them that are just lovely to suck when you are eaten up with ennui.

Your eyes have got to have that "come hither" twist to 'em when you first open 'em in the nest at the curve of your new mother's arm—the twist won't come afterward. You've got to bring it with you from the land of "Baby-dear."

And if you've got it!—heavens and earth! life is an easy thing for you forever and ever.

I'm going to follow you up, little Miss Lady Coquette, from the days of the flannel petticoat with lovely silvery-white embroidery around the hem, through your kid-hood, your tom-boy season, your school-girl time, your pretty youth when the bud of your beauty is just tinged with pink, through the Summer of the full-blown rose, through your autumn-time, when the petals are turning frailer and rarer before they fall, and until you go across the border into the winter when you'll sit and dream of the glory of the days that were, and wonder why your little granddaughter with your same hair and skin can't seem to drag the world after her at the tail of her gown, as you did. But, you see, she hasn't your eyes.

It's the twist in the eyes—the blarney the warmth—the mystery that looks out from your eyes.

Here you are. First, when you find that you've got everybody in sight going. And going good! You find that out pretty early in the game. By the time you're four, you're centred your talents on the men folks—but the toddling time—when your wool is scarce and fine on your noggin, and you haven't even one word to express your wicked delight in—that's one of the two or three times that come through the life of a Coquette when everybody in the world is her game. Man, woman, kid and old maid—for a true coquette is as dealt—on the woman heart as she is on the man-one. Some of 'em try to hate her when she grows up—but they can't manage it, anyhow.

Here you are. May your bagging be good.

How Dud Pooley Lost His Reputation---By Kennett Harris

SOL. BAKER, wading conscientiously through the Kansas City paper that he had rescued from a shoe box packing, looked up to remark that there was another good man gone wrong. "Silas T. Gainsmyth," he explained. "Busted up in business an' skipped out with a play-actress. Nobody ever had no idea of it."

"Funny they didn't," remarked Washington Hancock. "Seems like when a feller ruined Ned an' cut up Jacks, the way he did, it was about what might have been expected."

"You're crazy," declared Baker. "He was the quietest and soberest, religionest kine of a man."

"Then it sin't surprisin' that folks was surprised," said Hancock. "I noticed that folks allus is took aback when some shinin' light an' bright example backsides and fetches up at the bottom with a bump.

"When a feller, like Rufe here or Daddy Somerindyke, kicks over the traces, nobuddy takes notice of it, an' that seems to me kinder wrong. I'm lookin' all the time for Rufe to reform. If somebuddy came an' tol' me that he'd quit all his meanness an' started in on good actions, I wouldn't bat an eye. I wouldn't need to. I might say it was about time or suthin' like that, but ——"

"See here," said the storekeeper, whose given name was Rufus, "If you think them there circles is funny, I don't.

"I hain't jokin'," protested Hancock. "I really wouldn't be surprised if you done some good action. There ain't nuthin' in that to make you mad, is there? I was just remarkin' for instance. Similar, if you all set out to guess at the names that had be on the criminal calendar next co't I'd pick the fellers that's boldin' their heads so high they can't see under their noses.

"I've allus heard that the path of the transgressor was hard, but seems like to me it ain't a circumstance to the trial a feller takes up, when he tries to be a little better than most any one. When a feller does that, the rest of us ache to plug rocks at him, an' most any excuse is good enough. There was pore old Dud Pooley.

"Dud was about the best all-around man I ever knew," said Hancock. "The only trouble with him was that he was too darn good. He was as honest as the day is long, an' as meek as Moses, an' as kind as a kitten; there wasn't nobuddy grittier than Dud was, or more ambitious; he was a brainy feller, too, an' as well spoken as a gal; he was sober an' modest about himself, an' didn't speak nuthin' but the truth an' you wouldn't have wanted to fine a better Dinercrat."

"He reminds me of myself," remarked Eben Baxter, complacently.

How Dud Lost a Reputation.

"Account of bein' so diffrunt, I reckon," said Hancock. "There was one thing about Dud, though, that spiled all the rest. He forgot ever once in a while, an' jest as sure as he did, the neighbors up, wink an' poke each other in the ribs an' say, 'There's your model man for you. I tell ye ye'd better watch out for fellers like him.'

"As I say, Dud was honest, but there was one time when Henry Turker got him drunk an' helpless that Dud come along to where he was a layin' in the road, an' stole his wallet out of his pants pocket an' gave it to Mrs. Swayne, who Henry had been a standin' off for his board. Mrs. Swayne wouldn't give Henry the money, which was fifteen dollars, an' he didn't dare nuthin' about her givin' him credit for it; so he had Dud arrested for petit larceny an' there's folks right to this day that wouldn't leave Dud alone in the rooms with their solid silver.

"Another time a boy, that he was sort of friendly with, got into a scrape an' his mother set Dud about it, an' he tol' her a cock-an-bull yarn that made her feel mighty good. But there was others that knowed the straight of it an' they called Dud a shameless liar, an' there's many now that wouldn't believe him on oath.

"Then he lost a twenty-eight-year-old reputation, for meekness an' not usin' cussin', by slappin' Big Jim Tanner on the mouth for suthin' Jim said about a gal. At the same time, he tol' Jim what he was, as strong as was nesary, an' I've heard nuthin' since then tell her young one to be keerful how he talked, or the first thing he knowed he'd be blasphemin' as bad as Dud Pooley.

"One time Ole Man Jerry Trent got one of his ugly spells an' wanted to lick Dud, an' Dud sold of knockin' the ole rascal cudwise, which he might have done easy, he run like a whitehead, Jerry after him. Well, you couldn't make some folks believe that Dud had sand enough to grit, on a tooth after that.

Then He Scratched His Ticket

"I worked the same way when he had the toothache an' swallered the whiskey he'd left on it. He wasn't so full that he staggered, or anythin' like that, but some ole hen smelled it on his breath, plain, an' word got out that he kep a bottle in his room all the time, an' gussied on the quiet.

"Then when he scratched his ticket an' voted for a black Republican for State Treasurer, just becus the reglar nominee was a slick rascal, Gay read him out of the party. Now, if you go back to that town an' ask what kine of a man Dud Pooley is, a feller that don't like him'll say:

"'That sneakin' cowardly, bullyin', lyin', thievin', drunken, cussin', turncoat, Dud-ley Pooley, d'ye mean?'

"So you see," concluded Hancock, "if a feller starts out to be good, he's got to be good 'cos hull enfurin' time an' never let up once."

"I know," agreed Sol Baker, feelingly. "I've had things said about me afore now."

SMILES

SUBTRACTION.

"Now, in order to subtract," the teacher explained, "things have always to be of the same denomination. For instance, we couldn't take three apples from four pears, nor six horses from nine dogs."

"Teacher," shouted a small boy, "can't you take four quarts of milk from three cows?"

HIS READING

"Do you read all the books you buy?"

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox; "my leisure is used up in reading the advertisements that persuade me to buy them."

DAY'S BEST STORY

A MAIDEN LADY, suspecting her female servant was regaling her beau upon cold mutton from her larder, called Betty and inquired whether she did not hear someone speaking downstairs.

"Oh, no, ma'am," replied the girl readily; "it was only me singing a psalm to myself."

"You may amuse yourself, Betty," replied the lady, "with psalms; but let's have no hymns, Betty; I have a great objection to hims."

Betty curtsied, withdrew, and took the hint.

FRECKLES

May Worst Month for This Trouble. How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in May, but happily there is also a cure for those ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get one ounce of othine, double strength, from Houghton & Dutton, and apply a little of it at night, and in the morning you will see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Don't be discouraged, but persevere a little time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they will stay all Summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Money back if othine fails.

Read "The Fortune Hunter"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NEXT Saturday "The Fortune Hunter," Joseph Vance's great romance, will begin in the BOSTON AMERICAN. It is a charming story and you must not miss one word of it. For those who are not satisfied with love alone, there is a delicious vein of humor running through it.

The fortune hunter, who is a somewhat graceless and extremely attractive, lovable young man, sets out to mend his fortunes by making a rich marriage. He finds an heiress, but, alas and alack for his ambitious plans, Cupid takes a hand in the game, and the fortune hunter falls head over heels in love with a dear little penniless girl.

Every girl will love the story. It is just the sort of romance which goes to the feminine heart.

Men will enjoy it immensely, for the humor and business instince which he unexpectedly develops, and also, though they may not acknowledge it, for the love interest.

Don't forget; it begins on Saturday next, and the first chapter is all important, for it introduces the hero.

GOLD DUST is better than soap and elbow grease for pots and pans. It digs deep into cracks and corners and sterilizes everything it touches

There is nothing about the kitchen which collects so much dirt, grease and grime as pots and pans; and there is nothing that will clean them so quickly, easily and thoroughly as GOLD DUST.

GOLD DUST cleanses until the last evidence of dirt has gone, and removes every trace of germ life.

You are probably not aware that pots and pans which are used constantly contain hidden nests of little wigglers—germs of putrefaction and decay. GOLD DUST removes these, because it sterilizes as well as cleans, and leaves your utensils clean, pure, wholesome, safe. GOLD DUST will work wonders in cleansing and polishing milk cans, pails, bottles and dairy utensils, pots, pans and kettles.

Suicide---the Coward's Way of Shirking

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE is nothing so cowardly as suicide.

It is a coward's way of shirking the responsibilities that life thrusts upon us.

The girl whose love affairs go wrong imagines that all joy of living is over, and she attempts suicide.

She has not a thought of the grief that her act will bring her parents. Selfishly, she thinks only of her own woe.

If she could make up her mind to wait a month, before trying to end her life, she would find that the desire for suicide had entirely departed, and a healthy love of living taken its place.

What if your love affair does end disastrously? It is a great grief and misfortune; but other women have gone through the same experience, and they still live and are able to get a fair amount of enjoyment out of life.

Love is the best thing in the world; but life holds other joys as well as love. And, anyway, the chances are largely in favor of your meeting another man and learning to love him, as well as the man whom you mourn.

Make the Most of Your Life

Be a woman, and make the most of your life, even if you can't have the man you love.

You very rarely hear of a man committing suicide for love.

Foolish boys threaten to do so, but threats are as far as they get.

When a man tells you that he will kill himself unless you return his love, don't be imposed upon by his threats. If he is coward enough to take his life and to threaten a girl, he is not the man to make you happy.

You will never grow to love a man whom you marry out of pity.

And don't think, little girl, that just because one man is false all men are so.

One man may deceive you, but the may be much better things awaiting you than his love would have brought.

There is no woman in the world who goes through life free of heartache, and yet there are millions of happy women.

Just at the time you feel as though there were no sun on earth who can bring you happiness, but that one.

When the Right Man Arrives

But the day may come when you will sing aloud with gratitude that fate spared you from that man.

Your love for the right man, when he comes along, will be infinitely greater. You don't believe that now, but nevertheless it is so.

The other day a girl attempted suicide because she had quarreled with her sweetheart. Just two days after they had quarreled that might have been forgotten by the next day, she raised an impassable barrier by her pride and the man she loved will never forget the foolhardiness of her action.

We are put on this earth to make some other creatures, not to wantonly throw away our lives.

You owe something to the mother who bore you, and to break her heart is a pretty poor return for all she has done for you.

You may go through hours of desperate unhappiness, but don't think of suicide that is a coward's way out of your trouble.

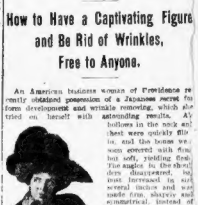
There is sorrow in the life of every man and woman; but there is also much joy.

And always remember that "weep" may endure for a night, but joy come in the morning."

Bust-Developing and Wrinkle-Removing Secrets Free

How to Have a Captivating Figure and Be Rid of Wrinkles, Free to Anyone.

An American business woman of Providence recently obtained possession of a Japanese secret for form development and wrinkle removing, which she tried on herself with astonishing results. A hollows in the neck and chest were quickly filled in, and the bones were soon covered with firm but soft, yielding flesh. The angles in the shoulders disappeared, bust increased in size several inches and was made firm, shapely and symmetrical. Wrinkles disappeared, small and undeveloped, the arms and limbs in her face went away as if by magic and her complexion became clear and beautiful. She is the admiration of her friends.



She now offers to send free to any woman whose figure is undeveloped or whose face is marred by lines and hollows, full particulars of this simple method which will enable you to the perfect form and beauty home to your own heart, to secure a captivating figure, like the lady whose picture is shown herewith, and to make your face clear and radiant.

All over lady subscribers who wish to be handsome and well formed will receive full particulars, absolutely free of charge, provided they send two-cent stamp or stamped envelope for return postage, by writing to Miss Janet Gilbert, 115 G. T. Import Bldg., Providence, R. I.

PARENTS FORGIVE YOUNG RYAN'S WIFE

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryan, the former the youngest son of Thomas F. Ryan of New York, and the latter a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander P. Morse of this city, whose romantic marriage at a little town in Virginia last year was followed by their immediate departure for California, have returned and been forgiven by Mrs. Ryan's parents, with whom they are now passing some time. Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan practically made all arrangements for the wedding and the extensive honeymoon journey.

$800,000 IS GIVEN CHARITY

Eight hundred thousand dollars, out of an estate of $920,000, is given to a score of charitable and religious organizations in the will of Martha Robeen Hunt, of Somerville, allowed by Judge McIntire in the Probate Court at East Cambridge today.

Unitarian churches, the American Unitarian Association and charitable associations organized or supported by Unitarians, receive more than $400,000 of the bequest. Local organizations, the City of Somerville and Concord charities, get about $200,000. Alden A. Perry and Edwin A. Stone, both of Somerville, were appointed administrators of the estate and gave bonds of $1,200,000 each. Keating and Brockett of Boston had filed an appearance for Robert W. Wood and Mary E. Huey of Philadelphia, but withdrew it and allowed the will to be passed.

SATAN IS DEAD NOW, SAYS DOCTOR SLICER

"The common way of the uninstructed in religion is to regard religion as an emergency department which is to administer first aid to the injured; they never use it unless there is a disaster. The old method was to blame all our sorrows on God and all our sins on Satan, but we made a discovery, that God meant us only good and that the Devil is dead, so we have to revise our whole method."—From the anniversary sermon of the Rev. Thomas R. Slicer of New York in the American Unitarian Association, last night in Tremont Temple.

FAVORS NEW MYSTIC BRIDGE

A new million-dollar drawbridge over the Mystic river, connecting Charlestown and Chelsea, the expense of construction to rest upon the city of Boston, is recommended in a report just made by Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Burr, U. S. A., to the chief of engineers of the War Department at Washington. The report will ultimately go to Secretary of War Dickinson.

Senator Lodge favors the plan to build the bridge, as recommended by the Government expert, and a petition has been turned over to the Senator bearing the names of prominent Boston business men, asking for the new drawbridge. This petition was given to the government.

The present bridge has a draw of only sixty-five feet, and Colonel Burr, believing an increase to be necessary for the future commercial welfare of the city, favors an enlargement to a draw of at least 100, and perhaps 120 feet.

WOMEN POLICE ARE NEEDED, SAYS BAKER

Whose police officers are the logical solution to the question of handling girls who have "gone wrong." From the moment she comes into the hands of the law, a girl should have the most sympathetic treatment, such as only women can give. She should not be subjected to the brutalities of a criminal handler.—Harvey H. Baker, Judge of the Boston Juvenile Court, speaking to St. Louis at the annual convention of the National Probational Officers' Association.

CHAMBER FOR LIABILITY ACT

The Boston Chamber of Commerce has pledged itself in favor of an act providing compensation for injured workingmen. The Chamber has requested the Legislature to appoint a commission to make an investigation. The Chamber also desires the Railroad Commission to report to the Legislature its opinion on the proposed validation of the stock and indebtedness of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

The Chamber wants the Legislature to take up a measure authorizing the issue of preferred stock by the Boston Railroad Holding Company, in the place of bonds previously authorized.

The workmen's compensation act was discussed by Edward A. Filene, Robert Luce, James A. Lowell, Frederick P. Fish and Henry Sterling, the labor leader.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

What are known as the room traders on the floor of the Stock Exchange are making the prices of stocks now. They are scalping for profits on one side and the other bring about what is, by courtesy, the stock market.

$ $ $

Both bulls and bears are presenting their arguments to the public, but the latter is not interested to an enthusiastic degree. It is non-committal. Buoyancy or depression would lead to increased outside buying.

$ $ $

Sentiment in connection with market movement is more hopeful. The large interests in the street are showing more attention to the reports regarding crops and the trend of business than anything else. Bullishness being reliegated to the rear for a brief period.

$ $ $

Oklahoma, Texas, and California's winter wheat fields will be ready for reaping within the next week or so, and its each of these States' prices than ordinary are expected.

$ $ $

It is stated in the most positive way that Mr. Morgan will return to New York in about two weeks, and that his arrival will be the signal for an ardent campaign in United States Steel common.

$ $ $

The market is so professional that technical considerations dominate it entirely. This promises to be the case for fully two months, by the end of that time the crop situation will be better understood and the financial element looks for easier conditions.

$ $ $

The New York banks are preparing to pay out nearly $50,000,000 in dividends and interest during June. This is an increase of more than $10,000,000 over the disbursements of last June.

$ $ $

So much pessimism has been inspired by the delay in bond announcements that the holders did not stand so uncompromisingly in favor of a strong market the professionals would attack in all directions. They have discovered that they can sell stocks within a fraction of current quotations at any time, but that any buying of importance cannot quite as advance.

$ $ $

Missouri Pacific has held its rise so well that the street begins to give some attention to the rumors that the company might increase dividends. The property has been brought up to a fairly good physical condition since dividends were suspended, and speculation in the stock has been carried as far as possible without some substantial development. The dividend idea is, therefore, plausible.

$ $ $

Rock Island's dividend on the preferred keeps edging up in the future as it has done month after month for the last year and a half. The entire Rock Island account will be in Europe within a month, and the dividend rumor will undoubtedly get a long vacation.

$ $ $

Mr. Gould and Judge Moore are optimistic on the business outlook. Judge Moore says it is excellent, while Mr. Gould notes the absence and departure of so many men of importance in and around the business and finance for Europe as proof that there are no clouds in the business sky.

$ $ $

Canadian Pacific for the present is fairly well equipped with United States railroad material. In the future it will not be present requirements are domestic, not foreign. Increasing prosperity and the lines of the West may soon tax the facilities of the road. The company has proposed of $70,000,000 of land still sold, $10,000,000 of which was sold during the last two years. This means a heavy increase in farm population.

$ $ $

Canadian Pacific is to the English stockholder what the Southern Pacific is to the same individual in America. For some time the Harriman road has grown in every widening favor here. A private subscription whereby the company had sold over $20,000,000 bonds in Berlin to a syndicate managed by the Deutsche Bank is the most certainly authoritatively sponsored in the Street. There is a fairly well-posted belief that a salient campaign has been planned in Southern Pacific or made active differently conditions warrant.

$ $ $

The statement that the Pennsylvania Railroad had acquired between 45,000 and 50,000 shares of New Haven stock is not read as a latent menace against the New York Central. Pennsylvania and Central are very friendly partners in similar enterprises elsewhere and have been so for years.

$ $ $

Goldfield Consolidated returns about 22½ per cent. upon the present selling price of the stock, and the company has about $25,000,000 of net tangibles locked out in its mine, or about $7 per share.

$ $ $

Fight for Taxation Reform Has Only Begun

The Real Question at Issue Is the Right of the People to Be Heard—Future Legislatures Will Be Asked to Be More Considerate

Tax reform is dead for at least two years. But the fight will go on with greater vigor.

The Massachusetts House of Representatives, by a vote of 90 to 134, has placed itself on record as saying that the taxation system of the State is not susceptible of improvement.

It has curtly turned down the demand of business and labor organizations that the people be given a chance to pass upon the necessity of allowing a change in the Constitution that would permit the classification of property for taxation purposes.

This Legislature has said, in effect, that future legislatures could not be trusted to deal honestly and intelligently with taxation questions, should the people declare that the Constitution should be so amended that imperative public needs could be promptly met by new taxation laws.

By its vote the House did more than that. It went on record as saying that the question should not be put up to the people because they are too ignorant to decide it properly.

The great issue before the House was touched upon but lightly by the debaters. There was no question of making new taxation laws or of amending old ones. The prime motive for the introduction of the resolve for an amendment to the Constitution was that the wishes of the people might be registered after a thorough campaign of education.

By this vote the House has denied the people the right to be heard. By this vote it has said that they are not entitled to an educational campaign on the taxation system of our State government.

On the question of a three-mill tax, good arguments may be advanced on either side. Men may sincerely differ on the three-mill tax. But on the question as to whether or not the people are entitled to be heard on a proposition to reform the taxation system there should be no difference among men who bear in mind that they are sent to the Legislature to act as the agents and not as the masters of the people.

Influential mercantile and manufacturing associations and leading labor organizations have made the charge that the industrial development of the State has been retarded by our antiquated taxation system. They say it does not meet the demands of modern times.

That may be so or it may not be so. But, at any rate, such a charge made by such organizations should be thoroughly investigated. It should not be disposed of in a day of limited and misleading debate. The whole matter should be submitted to the people and thoroughly threshed out.

The framers of the Constitution did not intend that the legislatures should be a check on the people. The very wording of the Constitution shows that the intention was to have the people a check upon the legislatures. But it seems to be the opinion of the average Massachusetts legislator that nothing should be submitted to the people.

Admitting that there may be an honest difference of opinion on the merits of the three-mill tax, about which so much dust was raised by the members of the House in an attempt to becloud the real situation, the fact remains that the most important feature of this tax reform fight—the referendum element, which provided for an expression of opinion on the part of the people—was given scant consideration.

The Democratic party has often proclaimed its devotion to the principle of the referendum. Its national and local platforms and the party leaders have advocated it, and it seems more than strange that forty-three Democratic members of the Massachusetts Legislature should deliberately violate one of the principal tenets of the party, should repudiate party doctrine, as they did by voting against a referendum of the proposed taxation amendment to the voters.

We believe it is high time that greater public interest was taken in the taxation system of this Commonwealth. The only way to rouse a greater public interest is by submitting taxation questions to the people. That is all that was demanded of this Legislature.

In the opinion of this paper the House has been unreasonable in denying to the people the right to be heard in this instance, and has deliberately and gratuitously insulted their intelligence.

A demand for more consideration of the people's rights will be made on future legislatures.

Proposed Scale of Compensations

How the Chamber of Commerce Would Promote Cordial Relations Between Employer and Employe Through New Law

The Legislature of Massachusetts will be called upon soon to give serious consideration to a workman's compensation act. The Joint Judiciary Committee has been studying the question thoroughly. It is pretty generally agreed that the present law, known as the Employers' Liability Act, has serious defects.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce, anxious to promote the most cordial business relations between the employer and the employe, has taken hold of the subject in a practical way. A special committee of the Chamber, in a strong argument favoring the theory of a compensation act, proposes the following scale of compensations:

If persons are left entirely dependent, compensation should be four years' wages, but not less than $1,500 or more than $3,000.

If persons are left partially dependent the compensation should not be more than the amount provided if persons are entirely dependent, the proportion to be determined as other questions under the law.

If no dependents are left, $200 for funeral expenses should be paid in addition to any weekly payments.

For total or partial incapacity, a weekly payment not exceeding 50 per cent. of the weekly wage loss and not more than $10 a week, the amount not to be paid for more than four years.

Organized labor, always having the best interests of the workingman at heart, should carefully study this scale of compensations. It is only natural to suppose that the employing element will do so.

In considering these figures it might be well to bear in mind these facts:

The verdicts in 276 tort cases during the October, 1909, Suffolk County Superior Court term averaged between $600 and $700, only 24 being more than $2,000, 11 between $3,000 and $5,000, and five above $5,000.

It should also be borne in mind that it now takes from a year and a half to two years and a half to try a tort case entered in this court, the average time being about two years.

It should also be borne in mind that the family suffers great hardship through this court delay when the bread-winner is taken away or incapacitated.

It should also be borne in mind that, usually, about one-half the amount recovered through a court verdict goes to pay the expenses of litigation, such as lawyers' fees and expenses of witnesses.

Taking all these things into consideration—delay, expenses, the hard feeling engendered through the operation of the present law for the recovery of damages—it must be apparent that a liberal compensation law would be better for all parties concerned—employers, employes and families.

Along Life's Thoroughfare

By Harry B. Metcalf

Faces artful, avaricious,
Faces buoyant, faces bright;
Faces crafty and capricious,
Faces dimpling with delight;
Faces eager and entrancing,
Faces fair and faces free;
Faces glad and gaily glancing,
Faces homely as can be;
Faces which the "I" rules blindly
Faces, jaded, joyful, too;
Faces keen and faces kindly,
Faces laughing up at you;
Faces, mournful, faces modest,
Faces narrow, faces nil;
Faces oh the very oddest,
Faces pinched and puerile;
Faces queer and faces queenly,
Faces radiant and rare;
Faces sweet, that smile serenely,
Faces of triumphant air;
Faces ugly and uncheery,
Faces vexed and faces vain;
Faces worn and wan and weary;
Faces experts can't explain;
Faces yawning, faces yearning,
Faces zealous all the way—
Faces in whose lines we're learning
New life lessons every day.
